First steps set for expansion of OB Library

By Dave Schwab | THE BEACON

Years in the making and spearheaded by Friends of the Ocean Beach Library along with the support of District 2 Councilmember Dr. Jen Campbell, plans and fund-raising are finally underway for Ocean Beach Library’s expansion.

“We feel that concrete progress is being made,” said Friends’ Expansion Committee in a joint release. “The expansion will be from the existing historical part of the library onto the adjacent property next door at 4817 Santa Monica Ave.”

The expansion committee noted a feasibility study for the library project determined that the existing building to be moved into at 4817 Santa Monica is substandard.

Therefore, the least expensive alternative was to demolish it and to expand the existing library onto the adjoining property, while preserving the existing library’s historic core built in 1928.

Ocean Beach optometrist provides free exams, glasses for OBES students

By Scott Hopkins | THE BEACON

Visual health is critical to success for students of all ages in today’s classrooms and Dr. Eli Ben-Moshe is determined that no needy students at Ocean Beach Elementary School will be hampered by vision issues.

Ben-Moshe’s Newport Avenue Optometry has been a community fixture for 50 years and serves hundreds of area residents. But, as a father himself, he has a special place in his heart for children.

For more than a decade, Ben-Moshe has been working with staff members at the school, located across Sunset Cliffs Boulevard from his office, giving the gift of excellent vision to children who would otherwise struggle in classrooms.

Children who see blurry images are often frustrated and fall behind their classmates, a combination that often manifests itself in behavioral issues that require intervention from teachers and counselors. Parents may admonish their youngsters, not understanding what difficulties are caused by their child’s uncorrected vision.

“We’re trying to help the kids who would otherwise fall through the cracks,” Ben-Moshe said.

City seeks bids to develop Sports Arena site

The City of San Diego has issued a request for proposals (RFP) from qualified firms and interested parties to redevelop, rehabilitate, operate, maintain and manage a 48-acre site comprised of six contiguous parcels of land, commonly known as the Sports Arena.

Currently, home to the Pechanga Arena, retail businesses and a parking lot, the site is located within the Midway-Pacific Highway Community Plan area. This community is undergoing extensive revitalization and is a leading commercial center with diverse retail and affordable housing opportunities.

Qualified proposals are due by Thursday, June 4 at 5 p.m. For more information, or to download the request for proposals, visit sandiego.gov/real-estate-assets.

“This is an opportunity to breathe new life into the Midway and unlock its full potential as an entertainment district for all San Diegans can enjoy,” said Mayor Kevin L. Faulconer. "With 48 acres of developable land, we can create a connected community with housing, retail and mobility options that meet our long-term goals to create a more sustainable future and build more of what San Diegans want to see in their city. This opportunity to create a livable, walkable and transit-oriented community in a place like Midway does not come around often,” said District 2 Councilmember Jen Campbell.

Point Loma Library to be retrofitted to attain zero net energy

By Dave Schmah | The Beacon

Point Loma/Hervey is among three City libraries about to be retrofitted to achieve zero net energy. ZNE is a term describing buildings, homes — even communities — that generate as much renewable energy onsite as they use annually. California law now calls for 50% of existing commercial buildings to be retrofitted to ZNE by 2030.

“The Point Loma/Hervey Library will remain open throughout the zero net energy renovation process, although patrons may notice work going on in different parts of the building,” said Christine Gonzalez, branch manager. Point Loma/Hervey Branch Library. “As one of the first City buildings to be converted to ZNE, we’re excited to be a model for sustainability and the move toward 100% renewable energy.”

The other two libraries in the ZNE rollout are Serra Mesa-Kearny Mesa Library and Valencia Park/Malcolm X Library.

All three libraries already have solar photovoltaic systems to generate energy. Converting to ZNE will require the installation of additional technologies including LED lights and new lighting sensors; heating, ventilation and air conditioning (HVAC) control devices; energy-monitoring equipment.

“The City of San Diego is working to transform our municipal building stock to drastically reduce energy consumption, energy costs, and greenhouse gas emissions,” said City chief sustainability officer Cody Hooven. “These ZNE library projects are proving that it can be done and will serve as an example for future deep energy retrofits of City facilities. We’re excited to bring clean energy resources to these communities and pave the way for the City’s clean energy future one building at a time.”

The start of the retrofitting of Point Loma/Hervey is set to begin at the end of April. Shannon Sales, an associate City engineer on its sustainability team, explained why libraries were chosen for the ZNE project.

“We wanted a place where people go that would be a good test case,” said Sales, noting libraries are designated “cool zones” where the public can take refuge in especially hot times. “We also wanted a place where its solar panels are visible, so the community can see that steps are being taken to achieve zero net energy making the buildings more efficient.”

Amplifying the definition of net-zero energy, Sales said those buildings “must produce more energy annually than they consume.”

We figure that Point Loma Library annually produces the energy of 35 homes per annum.”

Once ZNE retrofitting is complete, the Center for Sustainable Energy will begin monitoring energy usage to determine if the buildings will achieve ZNE, or if additional improvements are required.

Sales said there will be an “interactive dashboard display” in Point Loma/Hervey library so people can see how much energy is actually being consumed adding, “We can adjust and tweak the settings to make it run as efficiently as possible. “This program is a pilot right now, but it can be replicated citywide in other retrofitted buildings.”

The project is being funded by a grant from the California Energy Commission in cooperation with SDG&E. The ZNE program is part of the City’s Climate Action Plan, approved in 2015, which calls for eliminating half of all greenhouse gas emissions in the city and aims for all electricity to be from renewable sources by 2035.

Recently, Mayor Kevin Faulconer released the 2019 Climate Action Plan Annual Report, which shows the City is ahead of schedule in meeting its clean-air goal.

Kinetic learning and fun for children at Kid Wonder

By Dave Schoenb | The Beacon

Kids have so much fun at Kid Wonder, a new juvenile play/exercise space off Sunset Cliffs Boulevard, that they can mentally morph into their favorite superheroes.

Hence the name of the recently opened business created by Kimberly Bryant, a new mom, and her husband, who opened business created by Kinetic learning and fun for children at Kid Wonder.

Kimberly Bryant, a new mom, and her husband, who opened business created by Kinetic learning and fun for children at Kid Wonder.

Kid Wonder is the first children’s wonderland in San Diego. It’s a kinetic learning academy, so my idea behind it was to change the way preschoolers and other kids learn and give them a challenge, an obstacle to overcome while they’re learning their colors and numbers, and about their bodies and spatial awareness.

Kinetic is a learning style where children engage in physical activities involving whole-body movement to process new and difficult information. Kinetic learning allows children to actively grow their confidence while exploring new and fun activities. It aids in helping them to develop memory skills and management strategies.

Bryant noted Kid Wonder is also good for kids with behavioral issues. “Instead of giving them drugs, send them to a gym like this to get their exercise,” she said. “It teaches them to focus if they have a goal or challenge.”

On a recent weekend around dinnertime, moms and kids of all ages piled into Kid Wonder with one objective, play, in mind. Soon, kids were sliding into foam squares, jumping onto a trampoline, swinging on swings and negotiating kid-friendly obstacle courses in the play-safe indoor gym.

There are play and pay options at Kid Wonder. Parents can pay by the hour, the day of the month for a potential $60,000 in prize packages/events. Those include WonderTime pre-kindergarten prep, Mommy-N-Me play-along, the American Ninja Warrior program and gymnastics at various levels. There are also offerings for open gym time for members and non-members as well as birthday parties, kid camps, parents night out and drop-off packages for kids and toddlers.

There is a $65 registration fee for all programs. There is also a 20% military and sibling discount. Highly skilled and trained coaches and teachers provide children and parents the best possible care.

Kid Wonder’s first American Ninja Warrior Competition, that anyone can attend, will be April 4-5. At that time, kids can qualify for regional competitions in American Ninja Warrior to vie for a potential $60,000 in prize money.

LYFT OPENS DRIVER CENTER IN BAY PARK

On Feb. 11, Lyft officially opened its 35,000 square-foot Driver Center at 1240 West Morena Blvd. The Bay Park facility, formerly Toys “R” Us, will serve as a one-stop-shop for thousands of Lyft drivers, providing them competitively-priced vehicle repairs, and maintenance.

The building features a mural by Ocean Beach artist Celeste Byers that colorfully illustrates vehicles and scooters in what Byers describes as her “interpretation of Lyft’s future of travel.”
OBMA’s annual breakfast highlights visionary marketing strategies

The event was hosted by Dirty Birds OB with food by Nico’s and OB Smoothie and coffee supplied by OB Beans. Brown Marketing Strategies handled most of the presentation, breaking VISION down into its various components: Vision, Impressions, Social Media, Incentives, Organic efforts, and Networking.

“The message we were conveying was a demonstration of all different types of marketing tactics, and all the opportunities available to OBMA members regarding marketing and promotion to make their goals in 2020,” said Julia Woods of Brown Marketing, who also distributed a calendar worksheet for members to use to track their marketing efforts.

Woods gave a tutorial on how to design letterheads, ads, designs, postcards, etc. using the helpful website, canva.com. Explaining that the V in her acronym stood for Vision, Woods said she intended to show “how business owners can identify their target audience, and how and where they can reach these target audiences, whether it be local ads or social media efforts.”

Woods described the S as representing “sharing and caring of posts, videos, and photos from the community that are newsworthy and an easy way to add content to your webpages.”

The marketing strategist said incentive is the second I in the vision acronym, which she noted connotes “the importance of scheduling things ahead of time in creating content and calendars.” She added incentive also applies to “retaining and gaining customers.”

Woods cited the OB Shop and Dine card as one example of OB merchants employing incentives in their marketing plans.

between patient exams on a recent afternoon. “They are from families who don’t have vision insurance or a program that furnishes glasses for their kids and couldn’t otherwise afford them.”

Ocean Beach Elementary now has an enrollment of 420 children in grades K-4 and a state pre-school with 25 more. Each is screened every other year for vision issues by the school’s part-time nurse and health technician. Referrals from classroom teachers are also a major factor in identifying those whose vision is affecting their classroom success.

When students are referred, school staff member Anna Stepanof contacts Amy Bobbish, office manager at Newport Avenue Optometry. At an agreed-upon time, Stepanof escorts the student across the street for their exam. Parents occasionally attend.

Ben-Moshe and his staff give the child a complete eye exam to detect all vision issues including eye health and development. The child is then shown a display of children’s frames. Once they have made their selection, the glasses can often be made within minutes and the student is able to walk back to school wearing their new glasses.

Ben-Moshe has seen the differences his work makes. “One boy put his glasses on and then looked around for several seconds,” he recalls with a chuckle. “Then he turned to his mother and said, ‘I can see!’”

“You can’t forget the kids’ smiles,” Ben-Moshe says. “And we get even more gratification than they do.”

Parents have returned to thank Ben-Moshe, saying their children now read for fun when they used to give up after several minutes due to headaches.

Ocean Beach Elementary Principal Marco Drapeau knows how valuable Ben-Moshe’s services are to his students. “What the good doctor has done is very much appreciated,” Drapeau said. “It’s really, really made a huge difference for a good number of our students. We still have a number of families in the district calls ‘social-economically disadvantaged’ that may not have access to insurance or certain resources and these kids could be suffering far longer than they have to.”

Teachers have observed that behavior issues are reduced and student self-concept increases when students are suddenly able to clearly see their classroom environment.

“We’ve seen the difference it makes when a kid who needs glasses gets them,” Drapeau noted. “It’s like a night and day difference, where a student that may have been struggling for years suddenly realizes ‘Oh my gosh, I can learn to read and write and take science classes’.”

These newly remedied students have helped raise the school’s test scores above other schools with a similar population.

Ben-Moshe’s contributions have certainly been a factor in the school’s recognition as a California Distinguished School academically and receiving an Exemplary Arts Education Award.

Thanks to Ben-Moshe, Drapeau, his staff and students truly have a clear vision of success.
When it comes to pleasing a palate, nothing quite fulfills like pizza. And there are a plethora of Peninsula pizzerias serving up every imaginable style of pie from New York-style thin to Chicago-inspired deep-dish pizza, and everything in between.

The roots of pizza go back to ancient times, flatbreads and the Romans. But legend has it that Italian King Umberto I and Queen Margherita, who visited Naples, Italy in 1889, were the first members of Italian royalty to put the dish on the map. They asked for a pizza, and the one made for them contained fresh tomatoes, mozzarella cheese, and basil. That pizza is still known as Pizza Margherita today. San Diego and the Peninsula, like its craft brews, have a selection of pizzerias to rival anywhere else. Here are a few spots to choose from:

Mr. Moto Pizza

Owner Gibran Fernandez started out working at Pizza on Pearl in La Jolla, eventually purchasing a stake in the eatery, which led to his first restaurant in 2015 in Pacific Beach. Soon, he spread to North Park, Point Loma and, most recently, Ocean Beach. According to Fernandez, what makes his pies truly special are “our unique pairings and toppings and our ricotta-stuffed crust.”

Variety is important too. “We change it up with a new pizza of the month where we really innovate by the slice offering gourmet options with everything made in-house,” said Fernandez. Mr. Moto is known especially for use of premium cheeses, fresh gourmet ingredients and its perfectly kneaded, hand-tossed dough.

“The craft in our dough, and our consistency, really stands out,” noted Fernandez. “We offer drizzles with our toppings like rosemary, olive oil, sweet balsamic glaze, truffle, and garlic knots being the most popular and to die for.”

Branding is also big for Fernandez, who offers “funky videos” on Instagram to advertise his product. “It’s just a story with cartoon images of one of my locations,” he said of his videos noting Mr. Moto’s trademark mustache is on everything in his pizzerias “including our door handles.”

The pizzeria is known for its simple, fresh ingredients that are prepared to order to create authentic regional and seasonal specialties with a variety of flavors.

The menu offers a selection of salads, pasta, grilled meat, and seafood entrees, as well as artisanal pizzas, which blend the rustic flavors of Italian cuisine with locally sourced ingredients. Ulivo believes pizza doesn’t need frills.

Ulivo uses grande mozzarella cheese of the highest quality and is regarded as one of the best in the industry. The meat and veggie toppings are always fresh and plentiful.

Variety is important too. “We change it up with a new pizza of the month where we really innovate by the slice offering gourmet options with everything made in-house,” said Fernandez. Mr. Moto is known especially for use of premium cheeses, fresh gourmet ingredients and its perfectly kneaded, hand-tossed dough.

“The craft in our dough, and our consistency, really stands out,” noted Fernandez. “We offer drizzles with our toppings like rosemary, olive oil, sweet balsamic glaze, truffle, and garlic knots being the most popular and to die for.”

Branding is also big for Fernandez, who offers “funky videos” on Instagram to advertise his product. “It’s just a story with cartoon images of one of my locations,” he said of his videos noting Mr. Moto’s trademark mustache is on everything in his pizzerias “including our door handles.”

Officine Buona Forchetta
If your tastes in pizza run toward authentic Italian, then Officine Buona Forchetta is your place. This eatery blends award-winning Neapolitan-style pies and Northern Italian upscale entrees in a family-friendly, approachable space.

Located in the heart of Liberty Station, the 2,600-square-foot restaurant boasts two patios, offering families their very own seating complete with play ground and secure space to romp for kids while parents enjoy their meals.

Inside, two gilded ovens churn out classic creations, while the main kitchen serves up chef-driven pasta and entrée dishes. Owner Matteo Cattaneo brought the Italian warehouse-style eatery to life with industrial seating, hand-drawn murals, and a vintage Fiat repurposed into a table for two.

“We have Neapolitan pizza, Naples-style,” said Officine’s general manager Romina Licapa, adding, “Everything is imported from Italy. The mozzarella we use is homemade from an Italian recipe. Of course, the tomato sauce and mozzarella are both homemade.”

Licapa said Officine’s pizzas are distinguished by their bigger borders and crusts. “It’s not crunchy,” she said of their pies noting, “We have plenty of choices. One of our most popular is the Sofia, with artichokes, mushrooms, and bruschetta toasted Italian bread drenched in olive oil.”

Landini’s Pizzeria
Landini’s Pizzeria with locations in both Liberty Station and Little Italy bills itself as “best pizza by the slice.”

“We are the first and only New York-style “pizza by the slice” in the neighborhood since 2009,” claims the pizzeria’s website.

Located in Liberty Public Market’s Mess Hall, Landini’s has a huge selection of pie options with ingredients including pepperoni, ham, meatballs, black olives, cheese, eggplant, jalapeños, pineapple, zucchini, red peppers, ricotta, green bell peppers, fresh mushrooms, sun-dried tomatoes, Italian sausage, pesto, fresh garlic, anchovies, red onions, artichoke, chicken, bacon, fresh spinach, and fresh tomatoes.

Landini’s also offers up warm Panini layered with imported meats and cheeses, Florentine inspired pasta and a fine selection of beers and wines.

Alfredo’s Pizzeria in the heart of Point Loma.

“Freshness is important and everything is handmade,” said owner Alfredo Mata, who made pizzas in Italy for five years before moving to the States where he’s worked 15 years in the pizza industry. “We do have vegan and gluten-free options.”

Mata said thin is the preferred style at his pizzeria, but he can make pizzas to order. “We can even make a pizza with a Sicilian-style thick crust,” he said.

The menu features Margherita, meat lover’s, cheese and Alfredo’s combo pizzas, as well as Buffalo wings, salad, calzones, Strombolis and rolls, hot and cold subs, pasta dishes, desserts, appetizers, and soft drinks.

New Pointers softball field, sports complex opens after long delay

By Scott Hopkins / The Beacon

After a lengthy delay, the Correia Middle School Sports Complex has finally been substantially completed.

And that’s good news for Point Loma High School’s softball team, which will now call the complex home. The field will be dedicated at 4:30 p.m. on Feb. 15 when the 2020 teams are introduced and a second alumni game takes place.

Also on hand will be the Peckham family who donated the previous on-campus softball field as well as people who played a role in the vision and construction of the new field.

“The girls are super-excited to begin playing on it,” said head softball coach Billy Hunyady. “It’s a gorgeous, beautiful facility and it’s got all the bells and whistles including an announcer’s booth, P.A. system, restrooms, and the lights – we believe Helix and Point Loma have the only lighted high school fields in San Diego.”

At the Feb. 15 opening, Hunyady said the team’s Eastern League co-champion banner from 2019 will be unveiled, believed to be the only banner from 2019 which will now call the complex home. The field will be dedicated at 4:30 p.m. on Feb. 15 when the 2020 teams are introduced and a second alumni game takes place.

The field also features an announcer’s booth and sound system with a padded backstop. The impressive permanent foul poles are also far beyond where they should be.

All of the complex is equipped with LED night lighting, extending the hours it can be used and enjoyed by the community. But there are also some problems to be ironed out. Community input called for the entire complex to be artificially turfed, something the school district also preferred. With these criteria, a district spokesperson told a community meeting in 2011 the total cost would be $9 million. But somewhere along the line, the girls’ softball field was changed to natural grass. Many fear the return of gophers whose holes in the playing surface could wind up causing serious injury to players.

Also, the outfield fence posts were installed 250 feet from home plate, farther than used in prep softball. Typical distance is 200 feet, perhaps slightly more in center field.

The remaining complex features four artificially turfed multi-use fields, marked for several sports that should provide years of use with minimal maintenance. The school’s basketball/tennis courts were reconstructed and a new building beyond the softball field’s left-field features a new building with concessions, restrooms, and equipment storage.

The species of grass selected for the girls’ softball field was changed to natural grass. Many fear the return of gophers whose holes in the playing surface could wind up causing serious injury to players.

Additionally, Hunyady said his staff has been told they must erect and dismantle over 300 feet of outfield fence before and after each game. Working with his assistant coaches, just putting up the fence took over two hours.

Future meetings are scheduled to hopefully resolve this and other issues. Despite these issues, “We’re super excited!” Hunyady said. It’s time to “Play ball!” at the new Correia Sports Complex.
