Mayor pitches mandatory water-conservation steps for a thirsty San Diego

STAFF AND CONTRIBUTION

Mayor Kevin Faulconer is recommending the city move to “drought-alert” status, the second phase of citywide water conservation calling for mandatory measures for all residents and businesses. The new measures would go into effect Nov. 1, pending City Council approval.

A city committee has already given its unanimous approval to move the conservation proposal on for a vote of the full City Council.

“San Diegans have responded to the statewide drought by conserving water at impressive levels,” Faulconer said in a statement earlier this month. “Unfortunately, a record heat wave and a dwindling water supply require us to do even more. I am recommending to the City Council that San Diego adopt...
Trial under way in Pacific Beach robbery case, La Jolla assault  By NEAL PUTNAM

Opening statements and testimony began Oct. 14 in the trial of a man whose ex-girlfriend wrote an incriminating letter to the sheriff’s department detailing the man’s crimes, including allegations he accosted a La Jolla real-estate agent and pulled off a Pacific Beach burglary.

The jury and alternates in the trial of David Allen Grub were sworn in by San Diego Superior Court Judge Melinda Lasater. The courts were closed Oct. 13 in observance of Columbus Day.

Grub is charged and linked to four burglaries and three robberies. He has pleaded not guilty and remains in custody on $450,000 bail.

A mysterious letter was found at the sheriff’s station in Alpine that named Grub, 45, as responsible for various crimes, but initially the writer’s identity was unknown. Grub lived in Alpine at the time, and a search of his residence and car turned up stolen property in several cases.

A sheriff’s detective is expected to testify that the writer was Grub’s ex-girlfriend, who told the detective “she still loved him.” The detective testified in 2013 that the woman wrote the letter because “she felt what he was doing was wrong.”

North PB hat sale a heady idea to raise money for elementary school

By DAVE SCHWAB

Two months after the second annual North PB Sip ’N Stroll business street fair, the beach community continues to benefit from the sale of event hats that continues as a fundraiser for Pacific Beach Elementary School.

Demand for trademark hats sold at the Sip ’N Stroll was so great that a second batch is now available through at least the end of the year, with half the proceeds benefiting Friends of Pacific Beach Elementary. The nonprofit is responsible for funding most of the school’s non-district-funded activities and programs.

“We did 200 hats selling for $10 at the stroll and we sold out,” said Mike Spangler of Spangler Event Productions Inc., who master-minded the Sip ’N Stroll as a way to help local merchants while distancing North Pacific Beach from the rest of the community.

“My daughter is now going to PB for Mentory and they have a great [artist] group which raised almost $100,000 that went to art, music and Spanish at the school.”

Ever since the stroll in August, Spangler said he’s been getting “an email a day from people saying they want more hats.”

“So I decided to turn it into a school fundraiser,” said Spangler, noting he’s turned out another 300 Sip ’N Stroll hats that, when sold at $20 apiece with $10 going back to the school, will generate $3,000 to help schoolchildren.

Participants are urged to sign up now for the “No Limits” 5K Walk, set to take place Oct. 18 at Anza Cove.

The event is sponsored by Geico and the Cubic Corporation, with proceeds benefiting the United Cerebral Palsy (UCP) of San Diego County.

This is a gentle 5K walk along the walking path in Mission Bay.

Check-in starts at 8 a.m., with the walk starting at the northeast end of Mission Bay at 9 a.m.

Walkers and rollers will receive a continental breakfast, entertainment, ’T-shirts and lunch provided by Casa De Bandini and Casa Soly mar and a free submarine-sandwich coupon from Jersey Mike’s.

Organizers encourage participants to bring friends and family to support UCP and to provide vital and innovative program services for persons with cerebral palsy and other disabilities throughout the community.

Walking teams are encouraged to turn out. The UCP doesn’t charge an entry fee. However, organizers said they hope walkers will send emails to others asking for support.

There will be ’T-shirt decoration and other activities for children.

To participate, sign up at www.ucpsd.org, or call (858) 571-5365 for more information.

PB WOMAN’S CLUB SETS CASINO NIGHT FUNDRAISER OCT. 25

The Pacific Beach Woman’s Club will host its fall fundraiser Casino Night on Saturday, Oct. 25 from 6 to 10 p.m.

The club will host several casino games like craps and roulette, as well as poker tables. The money raised during the event goes to help fund the club’s philanthropic work around Pacific Beach and the San Diego community, as well as helping with the upkeep of the club’s 110-year-old building.

The club was formed in 1895 and soon became the original Pacific Beach Lending Library. The club’s goal is to promote friendship through service to better the community.

In conjunction with Casino Night, the club is also offering a sale of tickets for a Holland American seven-day cruise for two as a special drawing to be held the evening of Oct. 15 for every $25 each or five for $100. Bidders need not be present to win.

Those wishing to purchase tickets can call Rose Galliher at (838) 344-9210 or Mary Lou Benz at (959) 775-6391.

Grub is accused of showing up with a rifle and confronting a real-estate agent in La Jolla on Aug. 1, 2012 after the agent had just finished showing the house to a prospective buyer.

Witnesses said a man demanded jewelry and money, grabbed fur coats and jewelry and took the agent’s cell phone. The robber fired shots at the home-owner, dropped the fur coats and fled in a black car.

Grub is also accused of being one of two armed robbers on Dec. 20, 2012 in Rancho Santa Fe. The robbers handcuffed the maid to the front door and demanded jewelry, diamonds and cash. The home was ransacked, with a loss of $250,000 in jewelry, gold and other items, according to court records.

The first burglary occurred on May 24, 2012 on Loring Street in Pacific Beach, when the resident returned home and saw a man carrying a drawer from the victim’s dresser. The suspect fled in a black car, and the victim discovered a large amount of jewelry was stolen.

A detectable testified that a jewelry box belonging to the Pacific Beach victim was found in Grub’s car.

11 Critical Home Inspection Traps to Be Aware of

Weeks Before Listing your Home for Sale

SAN DIEGO. According to industry experts, there are over 187 physical problems that will come under scrutiny during a home inspection when your home is put on the market for sale. A new report has been prepared which identifies the eleven most common of these problems, and what you should know about them before you list your home for sale.

Whether you own an older home or a brand new one, there are a number of things that can fall short of requirements during a home inspection. If not identified and dealt with before they occur, you could cost you dearly in terms of repair. If you wait until the building inspector flags these issues for you, you will almost certainly experience costly delays in the close of your home sale or worse, turn prospective buyers away altogether.

In such a situation, you are made a responsible pre-inspection owner if you know what you’re looking for, and knowing what you’re looking for can help you prevent little problems from growing into costly and unmanageable ones.

To help homeowners deal with this issue before their homes are listed, a free report entitled “11 Things You Need to Know to Pass Your Home Inspection” has been compiled which explains the issues involved. To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your FREE copy of this useful report, call toll-free 1-800-176-0767 and enter 1003. You can call any time, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Social-media site Nextdoor.com helps track down suspect in unprovoked panhandler attack

By NICOLE SOURS LARSON

While most panhandlers appear harmless, I learned a painful lesson recently how some can be violent.

The attack came out of nowhere, totally unprovoked, just as the thunderstorm hit Pacific Beach at 5:45 p.m. on Sept. 16.

My husband and I sat in our Mustang, the first car in the inside lane, waiting for a green light to turn from Garnet Avenue onto East Mission Bay Drive toward the I-5.

I had noticed a panhandler crouving on the median trying to attract attention while holding a sign and flyers. He wore a gray T-shirt with a message in red, saying, “I haven’t won my first million yet, but ask me how!” He looked to be about 5-feet 7-inches, lean and wiry, in his 40s or 50s, with ginger-colored, curly hair and beard. I had ignored him, refusing to make eye contact.

As the light was about to change, I saw him kneeling by my front left tire, jabbing at it and sticking his sign into the tire well. He walked away as the light changed and the skies opened. After clearing the intersection, I stopped to look if I were dragging the sign. A woman in the car in the next lane called over and recommended I check my tire, since she’d seen the guy stabbing it.

I made a U-turn, stopped in a parking lot and discovered my pancaked tire, which my husband changed in the rain.

With all the storm-ignited chaos in the city that day, I couldn’t get through to the police, finally filing a police report online the following day.

Determined to warn fellow residents so the same thing wouldn’t happen to them, I posted an account on our online bulletin board, Nextdoor.com.

That’s what ultimately solved the crime.

TV Ch. 10 news reporter Dan Haggerty, a Pacific Beach resident, saw my post and contacted me. We did an interview that ran on KTV. I left the interview at the station. Haggerty and videographer Alex Gray spotted the panhandler matching my description and shot photos and video. Haggerty sent me pictures, from which I was able to identify the attacker. I passed them along to the police.

Pacific Beach Town Council president Alan Harris also recognized the panhandler from my Nextdoor posting and reported his location to the police. Armed with Haggerty’s photos and Harris’ tip, SDPD officers arrested Rex Manley, 38, a longtime petty criminal. Because he was carrying a concealed weapon, as well as drug paraphernalia, officers charged him with a felony, not just vandalism.

I’ve learned valuable lessons from this experience. Be aware of your surroundings and be able to describe a potential suspect. File a police report.

In this era of social media and short-staffed police, use social media to alert neighbors about crimes and help catch criminals.

And how about dealing with panhandlers?

“The best way to deal with them is to tell them or gesture no. Ignoring them works. [I]f they get aggressive or violent, call the police,” said Northern Division Capt. Jerry Harris.

One Pacific Beach resident, Nicole Sours Larson’s 1992 1/2 Special Edition red Mustang convertible was vandalized by a panhandler at the intersection of Garnet Avenue and East Mission Bay Drive during a freak thunderstorm that hit Pacific Beach during the rush hour on Sept. 16. The panhandler, believed to be Rex Manley, punctured the left front tire, forcing its replacement.

than three months, she’s continuing the quest and remains hopeful of ultimate finding.

“Carly’s been seen twice in Pacific Beach within the last two weeks,” said Rasmussen. “We know she’s still around here and that she is still fine.”

Rasmussen said the social networking ties she’s established on Nextdoor have established 17 confirmed “spottings” of Carly in and around Pacific Beach since the bird disappeared. The parrot was seen Aug. 1 at Tourmaline Beach in PB. Rasmussen said Carly Lu was last seen at Bella Pacific Condos in the hills surrounding the In-N-Out Burger near Interstate 5.

“She’s in the Loring Street corridor from the beach to the freeway,” said Rasmussen, who said she’s been “plastering posters all over town” ever since with renewed confidence that Carly Lu may yet return to San Diego and Beyond where people can post about lost and found pets.

“Thats probably a good place to start,” Rasmussen said, adding Nextdoor.com’s website version can post about lost and found pets.

A perusal of Nextdoor’s neighborhord information-sharing website on nearly any given day reveals a host of missing dogs, cats, cockatiels — even tortoises.

Here is a list of lost pets listed recently in Nextdoor.com’s Crown Point North Lost & Found section:

• “My daughter’s blue-and-white parakeet got out of the house. She is devastated. Call (858) 247-4072.”

• “Found dog. Barak Dogan from Mission Bay.”

• “Found: 2 dogs at PB Christian Church, Sept. 15. Kathy Miller, PB North Shore Highlands.”

• “Missing black-and-white male cat — Zg, Alyssa Muto from Riviera Sail Bag.”

• “Lost dog: Maya: large Tan and black female Siberian husky/pit mix. Officer Larry Hessgeser from San Diego Police Department.”

• “Thanks to the Bird Rock Community Council’s (BRCC’s) e-blast, our missing 19-year-old cat, Rizelle, was returned recently,” Wampler said. “Apparently, she spent four nights with a family eating salmon and keeping their brown lab[rador] company, feeling right at home.”

Wampler said the outpouring of supportive emails she received about her lost cat “was astounding.”

“We are grateful for the kindness of so many thoughtful and caring neighbors,” Wampler said.

One Pacific Beach resident, Jonathan West of PB North Shore Highlands, went so far on Nextdoor.com as to find himself involved in a “shared conversation” with a number of neighbors who had been complaining of having been disturbed by cats.

West said he found this “little message” on his doorstep: “I am a cat, somehow manage to put up with all you argumentative human types who have decided to text about cats on your special little social community website.

“Roam through your neighborhoods, chasing rats, chasing birds away ... and now and again making myself available for petting and strange conversations aimed at us, which we don’t really understand. But through it all, we somehow manage to put up with you humans and I am really quite appalled to find that some of you don’t actually find us to be absolutely adorable ... I certainly hope that the rest of you will straighten out those confused souls who have this most unfortunate problem.

And that’s about all I’m going to say right now. I’ve got to get back to being the sort of cat that won’t take the time to tell you like it is, because we normally feel you should all understand things like this without any of us having to spell it out for you.

“I just have one final word, and I hope you will take it very, very seriously, for all the complex ramifications that it intends to communicate. That word is simply: ‘Meow!’

and Euclid Avenue in San Diego between Monroe Avenue and El Cajon Boulevard. Another at 25th Street between Broadway and B Street is scheduled to have reverse-angle parking soon.

“At this point, reverse-angle parking is primarily going to be used on streets that are either heavily used bike routes or existing and planned bike lanes,” said Gary Pence, a senior San Diego traffic engineer who’s getting the word out about the new, safer parking arrangement.

“Having reverse-angle parking on the street is safer for bicyclists because the motorist has a better view of the approaching bicyclist prior to pulling out of the parking stall,” Pence said. “Reverse-angle parking also provides the motorist with a better view of oncoming traffic while pulling out. Loading and unloading out of the car is safer because the door of the car acts as a barrier and opens to the sidewalk instead of into traffic. Additionally, loading and unloading at the back of a vehicle takes place on the sidewalk, as opposed to a busy travel way.”

Pence said other cities like New York, Portland, Seattle, Vancouver, Washington, D.C., San Francisco and Salt Lake City have also had success with this parking configuration.

Gross concedes, however, that reverse-angle parking is a tough transition for some.

“It’s taking some time to get people to figure out how to use it,” he said, noting “signs are posted” informing people that they need to be “backing in” to the parking space.

Gross said it’s encouraging that the city is doing something tangible to make roadways safer for cyclists.

“There’s an added benefit down there with getting strollers out and with kids getting out of their cars and heading right to the park instead of walking out into the street and around the car.”

Advocates point to reverse-angle parking’s benefits:

• Improved visibility and increased field of vision; motorists are better able to see oncoming traffic.
• Decreased collisions and reduced threat of runaway vehicles.
• Improved safety for children and cyclists.
• Improved loading and unloading logistics.
• Improved disabled parking.
• Increased space, as reverse-angle parking doesn’t require as much space to maneuver, resulting in more parking spaces and additional room for sidewalks, bicycles, et cetera.
• Has a traffic-calming affect as it encourages vehicles to slow down.

mandatory conservation measures to ensure that we all do our part to conserve as much water as possible.”

In 2011, the city enacted permanent measures more stringent than those of most cities and water districts throughout the state. And on Faulconer’s recommendation and with council approval, the city entered into a “drought-watch” status on July 1, 2014, calling for additional voluntary conservation measures in response to the statewide drought. Water usage in San Diego fell 4.4 percent in August and 5.7 percent in September compared with the same months a year ago. However, other factors, including a significant decline in ground water reserves throughout California, a drop in water reservoirs for the San Diego region, a lack of rainfall and diminished prospects for a strong El Niño and a severe heat wave for the San Diego region in August and September, led Faulconer to call for the second-phase status.

Under the new guidelines, the voluntary measures in effect since July will become mandatory. They also call for the additional measures, pending council approval, to go into effect Nov. 1, to wit:

• Watering and landscape irrigation using sprinklers will be limited to no more than three days a week on a schedule established and posted by the city.
• Watering will be allowed at residences with odd-numbered addresses on Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays; watering will be allowed at residences with even-numbered addresses on Saturdays, Mondays and Wednesdays. Apartments, condominiums and businesses will be allowed to water on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
• During the months of June through October, the watering limit is no more than 10 minutes per assigned day: during November through May, the watering limit is no more than 7 minutes per assigned day.
• The washing of automobiles, trucks, trailers, airplanes and other types of transportation equipment is allowed only before 10 a.m. or after 4 p.m. during the months of June through October and only before 10 a.m. or after 4 p.m. during November through May.
• Operation of ornamental fountains will be stopped except to the extent needed for maintenance.
• Potted plants, noncommercial vegetable gardens and fruit trees may be irrigated on any day but only before 10 a.m. or after 6 p.m. during the months of June through October and only before 10 a.m. or after 4 p.m. during November through May.

Enforcement: You can help the city enforce these new measures by reporting water abuses that continue or are not in compliance. Daryl McDonald and Tore Blichfeldt were honored as San Diego City Lifeguards of the Year on Sept. 27 at the Swell Café in Mission Beach. District 2 City Councilman Ed Harris — himself a veteran lifeguard — presented the awards.

McDonald, who received the Year-Round Lifeguard of the Year honors, is retiring after 28 years of service. He has served on the shores of Mission Beach, Pacific Beach and Ocean Beach, as well as the city’s boating waterways.

“I have a passion for helping people and I’m just happy to know we are appreciated,” Blichfeldt said. Blichfeldt was recognized with the Seasonal Lifeguard of the Year Award for his part-time work as an intern coordinator and for his work with the Junior Lifeguard Program in Ocean Beach, where he has worked since 1996. He is a science and biotechnology teacher at Mt. Carmel High School.

“It’s pretty humbling when you are the best lifeguard in the best lifeguard service in the country,” Blichfeldt said. “We have 283 seasonal guards. I’m just one person representing a whole bunch of people doing a great job.”

Another Pacific Beach resident, David Thomas, who lives a couple of blocks from the library and its park, agreed the time may have come to address the homeless issue more intensely.

“While I understand a sizable problem of transients overrunning the facility is open varying hours of service. The property. The owners were very appreciative of the quick police response.”

The growing problem with homelessness at the Pacific Beach library grounds was an attractive nuisance to gather ideas and look at short- and long-term solutions,” Teran said.

“Teran said the library does have a security guard who patrols, adding the facility is open varying hours every day but Sunday. Teran said she is convinced there isn’t one solution for homelessness at the Pacific Beach library, park and elsewhere.

“While I’m sure the majority of homeless people have no other options as far as living conditions at the moment, I’m rather surprised they are allowed to congregate on the library grounds (grass and sidewalk) areas, especially across the street from a daycare and sidewalk) areas, especially across the street from a daycare and sidewalk areas. The surrounding neighbors of Cass, Reed, Thomas and Dawes streets over the last few years have called the police non-emergency line almost on a daily basis due to drug dealing.”

John Vallas has been brewing up success in Mission Beach since 2011. That's when the submariner-turned-entrepreneur bought a coffee shop down to its last drop and transformed it into the tidal Swell Café, a laid-back, eco-friendly, Fair Trade java joint serving up an eclectic health-conscious breakfast and lunch menu in an open-air setting.

On Sept. 27, the business perked up again with a grand reopening that showcased a remodel, a new partnership with Gina Champion-Cain and the Patio Restaurant Group (PRG) and an expansion into the coffee-roasting business. Now roasting in small batches at the café, the Swell Coffee Roasting Company will soon open at a larger facility. Swell provides signature coffee blends to wholesale and retail customers and to all of the PRG brands: The Patio restaurants in Pacific Beach and Mission Hills and The Front Porch, a culinary boutique recently opened in Mission Hills.

Vallas calls his approach to coffee a "seed-to-cup" endeavor that's sustainable and traceable. He said he's currently working with a farm in Peru.

"By doing what we’re doing — spending a lot of time sourcing coffee from farmers and serving a quality product — we are connecting the customer to the experience and elevating the coffee scene in San Diego," he said.

The café’s remodel embraces the neighborhood’s history by paying homage to San Diego’s Lifeguards on tabletops emblazoned with black-and-white historic photographs. Images of beach-town heroes show the evolution of San Diego’s Lifeguard Services. From the early 1900s, fresh-faced, knobby-kneed young men dressed in dark muscle shirts labeled Police and Lifeguard hark back to a time when the two services were part of the same “Restaurants like this are our (San Diego’s) lifeblood,” said District 2 City Councilman Ed Harris, who was on hand for the reopening. “Tourism is our third economic tool. [Visitors] come here to get a great meal, have a great experience and want to come back.”

Harris, a veteran lifeguard, joined Vallas that day in a salute to San Diego’s Lifeguards of the Year: Daryl McDonald and Tore Blichfeldt.

McDonald and Blichfeldt were thanked for their service by Swell Café with free coffee for a year. Their names are also etched on a wall plaque, which has room for future lifeguards to be celebrated in an annual tradition.

Swell Café, located at 3833 Mission Blvd., serves breakfast and lunch daily and offers catering and rental of the restaurant for meetings and events.

LIVE MUSIC

By BART MENDOZA

The Kona Kai Resort is quickly gaining a reputation as the place to catch acoustic music in San Diego. With its beautiful setting right on the water and great, friendly atmosphere and lively performers, it’s becoming the “in spot” to be on Sunday afternoons. Each week’s lineup is different. Every Sunday, six performers take the stage on the patio, with Oct. 19 set to include Aubrie Williams, Jesse Nova and Carl Durant. What makes this show particularly interesting is the appearance of Durant, a Belgian artist. A former San Diego and regular on the coffeehouse circuit, Durant has a sizeable following in town. With this rare appearance squeezed in during a brief visit stateside, if you’re a fan of acoustic music, you won’t want to miss this show.

• ACOUSTIC MUSIC SERIES: Sunday, Oct. 19, 4 p.m. at the KONA KAI RESORT, 1551 Shelter Island Drive, Shelter Island. www.resort-konakai.com.

Appearing at Beaumont’s on Oct. 19, Matt Bolton performs solo — but that’s a bit misleading. Using sound loops created on the spot, he mixes percussion with singer-songwriter technique to create a full band sound that’s pretty amazing. This is especially evident when performing such tough, multi-track tunes such as Harry Nilson’s “Coconut” or Fleetwood Mac’s “Never Going Back.” His repertoire ranges from Marvin Gaye to David Bowie, with a few choice originals in the mix. He’s fun to watch, fun to listen to. Sunday morning is never going to be an easy gig, but Bolton is definitely a performer worth getting up early to see.

• MATT BOLTON: Sunday, Oct. 19 at BEAUMONT’S, 5662 La Jolla Blvd. 11:30 a.m. 21 and up. www.beaumontseatery.com.

The blues doesn’t come any tighter or hotter than Michele Lundeen. Performing on Oct. 21 at Humphreys Backstage Live, she is blessed with a voice that’s equal parts Janis Joplin, Big Mama Thornton and Tina Turner. Lundeen has a killer set, full of classic R&B and choice originals cut from the same cloth. Best of all is her stage show, which places her as one of the most exciting blues performers in the Southland. If you like your bar-room blues gritty and authentic, with plenty of passion, then a performance from Lundeen is just the ticket.

• MICHELE LUNDEEN: Tuesday, Oct. 21, at HUMPHREYS BACKSTAGE LIVE, 2241 Shelter Island Drive. 5 p.m. www.humphreysbackstagelive.com

Among singer-songwriters these days, the ukulele and banjo are bountiful and the acoustic gui- tar is common. But few play the Spanish or nylon-string model gui- tar like Gabriela Aparicio. It adds a different texture to her music than the typical fare, with her finger-picking style adding a percussive element to her music. Appearing at Cafe-Bar Europa on Friday, Oct. 17 at 4 p.m. and Saturday, Oct. 18 at 9 p.m., Aparicio’s music takes in soul, touches of bossa nova, jazz and pop, with lots of heartfelt originals that have hit potential, like the hook-and-rhythm-filled tune “Stampedede.”

• JAZZKATZ PROJECT WITH WHITNEY SHAY: Saturday, Oct. 18 at DIZZY’S, 4275 Mission Bay Drive. 8 p.m. www.dizzysjazz.com.

Whitney Shay is an impressive talent. Whether she’s belting out a standard, blues classic, soul groover or jazzy dance number, her voice and stage presence are formidable. One of the area’s hardest-working musicians, Shay can be seen with various combos, often performing with guitarist Robin Henkel. On Oct. 18, Shay steps into the world of big band music to perform with the JazzKat Project — a 13-piece jazz ensemble that performs music of the swing-dance era. Best of all at this show, you don’t have to be content to just tap your feet. You can choose to just listen or you can dance the night away.

Wake up and ‘Swell’ the Coffee!

A few months ago, The Patio Restaurant Group formed a partnership with the Mission Beach-based Swell Cafe to bring customers the best, locally roasted coffee in San Diego. Don’t just take our word for it, Swell Cafe was voted “Best Coffee in San Diego” by San Diego Magazine this year. The Patio on Lamont Street currently features a signature blend of coffee from Swell containing a mix of Colombian, Guatemalan and Ethiopian beans. It’s called the “Piazza” blend. It’s available at the restaurant for purchase or at The Swell Cafe.

If specialty coffee drinks are more your style, look no further. The Patio is serving up cappuccinos, lattes and mochas for $4. Or, if you’re in the mood for something more adventurous, try our Faux-Tella Coffee, made with Hazelnut Bailey’s, Godiva Milk Chocolate, coffee, whipped cream, and hazelnut. It’s perfect for fall as the nights grow cooler.

The Patio on Lamont Street is currently open every day at 9 a.m. Stop by for breakfast and experience the coffee everyone is talking about!
GABRIELA APARICIO: serious commercial potential. It’s all topped by her excellent voice, adding up to an artist with great promise.

Skà punk favorites return to San Diego on Oct. 28 for a show at Brick by Brick. Formed in 1988, the band’s high-octane performances quickly made it a South ern California favorite. Touring behind its latest album, “Adicción, Tradición, y Revolución,” the band may have gotten older, but its energetic, horn-driven performances continue to be a thrilling experience. While the band never had a hit, its show and energetic tunes — sung in both English and Spanish — will always have an audience as long there are people who enjoy manic spectacle.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

ST. PAUL’S NAMES TWO PB RESIDENTS TO KEY POSTS

ST. PAUL’S Senior Homes and Services has named Pacific Beach residents Tara Walsh as corporate controller and Justin Weber as its new executive director of residential services.

Walsh will direct the daily financial affairs of the organization under the supervision of the chief financial officer and prepare financial analyses of operations for the guidance of management.

She will be responsible for the company’s financial budgets, its accounting practices, the maintenance of its fiscal records and the preparation of periodic financial reports.

In addition, Walsh will ensure compliance with all federal, state and local government and grantor financial reporting requirements and that the organization’s accounting policies and procedures conform to generally accepted accounting principles.

Previously, Walsh served as divisional controller, where she directed the daily financial affairs of the St. Paul’s home and community-based services division under the supervision of the chief financial officer and prepared financial analyses of operations.

She was responsible for the division’s financial budgets, its accounting practices, the maintenance of its fiscal records and the preparation of periodic financial reports.

She was responsible for the division’s financial budgets, its accounting practices, the maintenance of its fiscal records and the preparation of periodic financial reports.

Walsh earned her MBA from San Diego State University and received her bachelor’s degree in communications studies from California State University, Long Beach.

A certified public accountant (CPA), Walsh is a member of the California Society of CPAs and the American Institute of CPAs. Walsh has a 2015 fellow for the Lead Age national leadership program.

Meanwhile, Weber will assume responsibility for oversight, compliance and overall resident, family and staff satisfaction in all of St. Paul’s residential communities (Manor, Villa, McColl Health Center and, subsequently, Plaza when it opens).

Prior to his appointment to this position, Weber held the positions of Villa administrator at St. Paul’s and previously as marketing and admissions director at St. Paul’s, where he was responsible for the marketing and admissions process in all the organization’s residential communities.

“I’m very honored to be able to continue to serve the residents, families and staff of St. Paul’s Manor, Villa and McColl Health Center,” said Weber. “And will continue to do everything in my power to ensure we operate in the most efficient and ethical manner possible with a primary focus on the seniors we serve.”

Weber earned his bachelor of arts degree in advertising from Northern Arizona University and certification in nonprofit management from Chapman University.

He has served on the board of directors of Lead Age California and board of directors of Nonprofit Management Solutions. Weber is a youth soccer coach for the San Diego Youth Soccer League and was presented with the Extraordinary Commitment Award, Leading Age California. He is a past Fellow in Leading Age Leadership Academy and past coach for Leading Age California Emerge leadership program.

ST. PAUL’S Senior Homes and Services is a full-service, nonprofit retirement provider offering independent assisted living and skilled nursing communities, child- and senior-daycare programs and a program of all-inclusive care for the elderly, a program dedicated to serving frail and low-income seniors in their homes, located in Chula Vista and downtown San Diego.

Since opening its doors in 1960, St. Paul’s remains an innovator in the San Diego community with a reputation for exceptional care.

SeaWorld’s ‘Halloween Spooktacular’ poised to go bump in the night for local fun-seekers

Where can kids meet some fun and funny Halloween characters, pose for pictures with mesmerizing -- or terrifying -- animals, and experience a sea-inspired atmosphere? It’s all happening at SeaWorld’s “Halloween Spooktacular,” where Halloween meets the sea.

Also, kids can visit the park for free in October with the purchase of a full-price adult admission.

SeaWorld’s Halloween Spooktacular festivities are geared for kids 12 years and under and are invited to come in costume and enjoy trick-or-treating and color-coded characters from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on the 17th and 24th of October, Oct. 18–19 and Oct. 25–26.

Youngsters can also take in some Halloween-themed shows, including one starring SeaWorld’s prickly-loving pineapples Clyde and Seymour.

SeaWorld is offering one child, ages 3 to 9, free admission with one full-paid adult admission during October. The same offer is valid at Dine With Shamu. Plus, kids age 10 to 12 can participate for free in SeaWorld’s Dolphin and Ray Feedings with a one paid adult participation.

Children must be at least 48 inches tall to participate in HIP and DIP.

SeaWorld’s “Halloween Spooktacular” is included with park admission.
