Earlier this month, Ocean Beach resident Amanda Johnson hopped on a Bird scooter she had ridden up to her house on Newport Avenue. As she made her way back down the hill, she noticed a lot of traffic through the intersection of Ebers Street. She hit the brakes, attempting to slow down, only to realize they weren’t working.

“I had this moment of clarity where I knew I’d either go into traffic or try to somehow slow down or stop,” Johnson said.

In an effort to stop the scooter, Johnson put her foot down on the sidewalk, causing her and the device to flip. She skewed onto the ground and sustained injuries to her chin— which required seven stitches to fix — and knees, road rash to her chest and hands, and bruises all over her body.

“Luckily my neighbor was outside and saw the whole thing,” she said. “She guided me into her house and found my phone somewhere on the street. When I ended the ride, I gave it one star and wrote ‘I’m on my way to the emergency room, somebody cut my cables.’

‘I’ve definitely seen people at the end of Newport Avenue tampering with scooters and even Lime bikes.’ – AMANDA JOHNSON, OB RESIDENT

Evidence of scooter tampering has occurred in Pacific Beach as well. Popular Instagram account @pacific.beach has shared multiple photos and videos of what they claim to be people cutting brake lines on scooters.

include damage to local storefronts, broken windows of cars, and theft or destruction of e-scooters.

“At Bird, we have zero tolerance for vandalism and aggressively address it when it occurs in communities where we are meeting people’s needs for sustainable transportation options. We encourage everyone in these communities—whether they ride Bird or not—to report vandalism done to or with our vehicles as we are committed to acting swiftly and effectively. If you see something, report it to us at hello@bird.co. Bird investigates all reports of vandalism and takes appropriate measures, including working with law enforcement.”

According to San Diego Police Department Lt. Shawn Takeuchi, other than Johnson’s incident, there have been no other vandalism reports filed regarding brake tampering for Bird, Lime or Lyft.

“Recently there have been some social media posts about individuals cutting brake lines,” Takeuchi said. “First and foremost, cutting brake lines is a crime. It’s either a misdemeanor or felony depending on the amount of damage that’s caused.

“There is a chance people are cutting brake lines because they are unhappy with scooters in their community,” Takeuchi said.

“That is not a way to send a message. It’s absolutely a crime.

“This was the first time Johnson experienced scooter tampering. Not only had she witnessed people cutting the brake lines on Lime and Bird scooters, but she also rode a different Bird scooter months earlier that she realized had broken brakes. Luckily she had plenty of time to let the scooter slow down on its own before ending her ride.

“I’ve definitely seen people at the end of Newport Avenue tampering with scooters and even Lime bikes,” she said. “There’s all sorts of evidence of this all across OB.”

At the time of this writing, Johnson said Bird had only paid for the ride she had taken during the accident. She’s considering hiring a personal injury attorney and did file an incident report with police.

“With the brake cables, it’s only the older versions of these Birds that have them actually accessibly,” Johnson said. “Newer versions don’t have the wires out there. Like they’re trying to take care of that, but they should probably take the ones with the wires off the streets because it’s becoming a pretty apparent issue.”

Takeuchi said the reason he believes brake tampering hasn’t been reported is because a crime of vandalism there has to be victim and a witness.

SDPD encourages citizens who see brake tampering or other scooter vandalism going on to take photos and videos and call the police. “Most importantly, (citizens) can’t just call and move on with their lives,” he said. “They have to remain there so an officer can talk to them. Because legally, if a minor is present the officer’s presence, an officer cannot make an arrest. It has to be a citizen’s arrest.”

Now, citizen’s arrest doesn’t mean residents are expected to “go out and put handcuffs” on the person responsible. All it means is that they have to stay at the scene and sign a piece of paper attesting to the fact that they saw the crime occur and that they’re making the arrest.

“We need a citizen’s arrest by the witness so we can take the suspect into custody. In the event the suspect leaves, we definitely don’t want the witness to follow them or put themselves in danger. Instead we’ll take a report, document the crime, collect any video, photographs or evidence and do a follow-up investigation,” Takeuchi said.

While no scooter vandalism arrests have been made yet in San Diego, Johnson has a few choice words to the people who are cutting brake lines.

“You’re not doing anything to Bird, you’re just trying to kill me,” she said. “Thank you for nothing. Thank you for making no difference in this world. Thank you for becoming a bigger problem.”

A drunk driver has pleaded guilty to vehicular manslaughter while intoxicated in the death of Justin Callahan, of Ocean Beach.

Lauren Ashley Freeman, 23, faces up to 11 years and eight months in state prison, said Deputy District Attorney Laura Evans on Monday.

Callahan, 35, was killed Feb. 26, 2018 and investigators initially believed he got onto a freeway transition ramp the wrong way from Sunset Cliffs Boulevard and collided with Freeman’s Toyota Camry.

The California Highway Patrol initially thought Callahan was at fault, but they reversed their earlier finding and Freeman was charged in November 2018. A murder charge was dismissed against Freeman by San Diego Superior Court Judge Runston Evans after she pleaded guilty to vehicular manslaughter. She also pleaded guilty to drunk driving on July 26.

Sentencing was set for Sept. 27 and Freeman remains in jail without bail.

Freeman caused the 1:55 a.m. crash by driving the wrong way on a ramp between Interstate 8 and I-5.

Callahan’s brother, Tommy Vilifrancisco, said his brother clocked out at 1:30 a.m. at his job in Chula Vista and was on northbound Interstate 5 while driving home when his car was struck.

Evans previously said in court that Freeman’s blood/alcohol level was .28, which is three times the legal limit.

Freeman had been drinking in Ocean Beach before the crash and disregarded four warning signs that she was entering the freeway the wrong way, said Evans.

Evans said Freeman previously worked as a server at an East County casino and she was taught a course about serving alcoholic drinks.

REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS AT PECCHANGA ARENA

The lease for AEG Worldwide, an international sports and live entertainment company, on the former Sports Arena property at 3500 Sports Arena Blvd., now Pechanga Arena San Diego, expires on May 31, 2020.

“A Request For Proposals (RFP) was issued because a number of parties expressed interest in a short-term lease of the sports arena, and the City wanted to ensure a fair and competitive process,” said City supervising PIO Arian Collins.

“The City’s Real Estate Assets Department anticipates presenting a prospective short-term lease for the sports arena to the City Council sometime this fall.”

Coleman Moving Systems keeps San Diego mobile

By DAVE SCHWAB | The Beacon

Family owned and operated Coleman Moving Systems of San Diego County has spent the past 40 years relocating people, businesses and their belongings from point A to point B. Based at 3045 Rosecrans St. in Point Loma, father-son team Stu and Matt Coleman admit little has changed in the industry since Stu started out in 1979.

“I came out here in 1978 with a psychology degree and tried everything, including real estate,” said Stu, who graduated from college in Rhode Island. “I’d gotten married and had a wife and daughter. In the ‘70s, everyone was buying packaging, door-to-door service, art and commercial moving and selling houses. So I figured I’ll get a rental truck, and if I need a helper, I’ll find somebody out of the newspaper.”

Turns out, the guy in the newspaper want ads above Stu had a rental truck. So they started out paper want ads above Stu had a rental truck. So they started out.

“Some people take to it. Others, it’s not their style.”

But those who are willing to work hard, find furniture moving can be profitable, if not fun.

“You do get good tips on this job,” said Stu. “Movers make out pretty well.”

“I (moved) to real slow — and careful.”

Coleman’s business model, joked Stu, of the hourly moving fee charge, adding, “What a lot of people do is just hire us for the heavy stuff. We’ll move everything, or nothing, it’s up to them.”

Stu said they charge a flat rate for large one-item moving, which his son, Matt, said can be challenging.

“Pianos going up and down stairs, those are really scary situations,” Matt confided. “You’re got to be real slow — and careful.”

“The worst jobs can be hoarders with lots of infestation of creatures, or nasty apartments with stories about movers being rough around the edges or looking like they just got out of prison. All of our guys are really nice. We always get positive feedback on our guys are really nice. We always get positive feedback on them. They’re not easy to get.”

Coleman Moving’s services include: antique, apartment, fine art and commercial moving, including extra-large items, custom packaging, door-to-door services, furniture delivery and setup, loading and unloading, office moving, packing and unpacking, pick-up and delivery, residential moving, referrals and short-notice moving.

Coleman sells packing materials and their six trucks arrive loaded with pads, dollys and free wardrobe boxes.

“It’s $105 an hour for two men with a truck,” said Stu. of the hourly moving fee charge, adding, “What a lot of people do is just hire us for the heavy stuff. We’ll move everything, or nothing, it’s up to them.”

Stu said they charge a flat rate for large one-item moving, which his son, Matt, said can be challenging.

“If (movers are) nice and friendly and polite, things go a lot better,” said Matt. “Obviously, moving is stressful. You hear a lot of nasty stories about movers being rough around the edges or looking like they just got out of prison. All of our guys are really nice. We always get positive feedback on them. They’re not easy to get.”

“The worst jobs can be hoarders with lots of infestation of creatures, or nasty apartments with dogs and cats all over where movers have to wear gloves,” said Stu.

“Strong backs, weak minds,” in Coleman’s business model, joked Stu, who added finding good movers is increasingly difficult.

“It’s kind of monotonous day after day moving furniture,” he said.

“In the ‘70s, everyone was buying the newspaper.”

“My dad and I worked on that truck until Stu took over and started his own.”

stop at the intersection, which is adjacent to a recreation center and churches and is near OB Elementary.

“IT (four-way stop) was started by an effort by parents who were concerned about the safety at the adjacent park,” said Schlager. “The sight lines can be pretty bad, and a lot of people drive quickly down Ebers.”

Adjacent to the intersection is Eberts Street Park, a highly utilized green space and playground for toddlers and their families.

In January, Isaac Darby, vice president of OB Neighborhood Watch, testified that large trucks are often parked on the street causing blind spots. He added the intersection is most dangerous during the morning and evening commutes for both drivers and pedestrians.

Initially, Darby’s application to the City for a four-way stop sign was denied because it didn’t meet requirements. That caused him to seek out OBPB to get the group’s recommendation to put in a new all-way stop at Saratoga and Ebers.

True tales of Vera the mermaid from Ocean Beach businesses

By DAVE SCHWAB | The Beacon

Ever since her appearance, mermaid in residence Vera has won over Obecian’s hearts. Last year, a lifelike, blue-haired mannequin-turned-mermaid named Marina once straddled 50-foot-high Ross Rock at Sunset Cliffs. She was taken down and mysteriously disappeared in June 2018.

Enter Marina’s “sister,” Vera, who has since replaced her and become the beach community’s de facto mascot.

“Vera the OB mermaid is positive magic and energy in Ocean Beach,” claims longtime Obecian Claudia Jack, who, along with her “crew,” including interior decorator Marina Cahn and muralist Janis Ambrosiani, is responsible for the nautical nymph’s triumphant return.

“Vera is a happy piece of OB, another piece of history here,” noted Jack.

When Marina went missing, Jack refused to abandon the search to replace her as some advised. “I devised my story that Marina is still out swimming, and that Vera is her sister,” Jack said.

Born-again mermaid Vera starred in last year’s OB Christmas parade. She rode in a lifeguard boat surrounded by her “court” of 20 mermaidettes and their parents.

Vera has since been gracing OB storefronts, switching locales every month. “It’s an attention-getter,” noted Jack.

Other “tour stops” for Vera are to include OB Surf & Skate (her current location), Sunset Cliffs, Prueti Reality and 2141 Salon in Point Loma.

Jack said the reaction of people, especially young people, to Vera has been truly “amazing,” with most everyone wanting to have their photos taken with her.

Recalling Vera’s creation, Jack noted they started by sending away for a boxed store mannequin that had to be shipped and reassembled. “They put her together, rearranged her wig into a pony tail, and did her skin tone,” Jack said. “We didn’t want her to be voluptuous and sexy. We wanted her to be a mermaid that 5-year-olds could stand next to and hug.”

Two local businesses who’ve had Vera say she was a pleasure to have around.

“Vera spent May at Details SalonSpa,” said Barbara Iacometti. “Many days she was seen lounging in the lobby. She had a new hairstyle nearly every day. Often times she would be sitting in a styling chair next to other salon guests while they were getting their hair done. She was the talk of the salon among our guests and staff alike. It was a sad day when Vera moved on, but we did enjoy our time with her.”

“My husband Shane and I own Shore Thing Pet Supply in OB and we recently had the privilege of having Vera hang out with us in our store for a month,” said Erika Bancroft. “She was a huge draw for everyone in town who remembers the mermaid out on the rock. As a new business within the community, we’re so happy to be a part of the Mermaid’s history.”

Vera the mermaid hangs out at The Electric Chair Salon in OB.

Lighthouse Ice Cream is a treat that should be enjoyed daily

I have lived in Ocean Beach since 1966. There have been so many changes to the community in those years. So many that if I were to count them many of our current residents would have no idea what I was talking about. But one thing has remained constant since 1997 – Lighthouse Ice Cream & Yogurt. I can’t tell you how many times I have been here and how many different items I have tried, but I can tell you that I have always come back for more.

Irene and I decided it was time to revisit Lighthouse. Of all my friends and acquaintances, I think that Irene enjoys ice cream more than any other friend I have. When we walked in we both spotted our favorite ice cream and it turned out we were on the same side of the fence. Dulce de Leche. We were going to have trouble.

First, we looked at the “Today’s Flavors.” It is a list 28 flavors long. Then we were not sure what some of them were: Beachcomber, Birth-day Cake, Death by Chocolate, It’s a Goody, etc. You get the picture. And the 31 toppings, if you include the “sauces” and the sprinkles.

But of course that isn’t all. Their Hot Waffle Ice Cream Sandwich made them famous. They’ve since added a Hot Pancake Ice Cream Sandwich. They have non-dairy items, soft serves, shakes and malts, root beer floats, and sundaes. It goes on, and on, and on. There is even a Doggie Ice in two flavors for your dog (vanilla and peanut butter). For people that are on special diets the non-dairy or sugar free offerings are extensive. The yogurt is a vanilla non-fat (hurt pack) and the soft serve is vanilla ice cream or pineapple whip. It is served with chocolate, caramel, green apple, cool lemon, tropical orange, blue coconut, purple grade or red raspberry toppings.

What’s that you say? You don’t want any of the above? Well, how about a piece of Julian pie, or a brownie Junior, or a banana split or a flurry or... There was no way that we could do justice to all their offerings. So in our case we decided to try it several times a month and today we chose our favorites and will have something different the next time.

Irene ordered a sundae with caramel daze ice cream – vanilla ice cream with chocolate bits and caramel drizzles. It was so good. She has been here and how many times I have been here and how many different items I have tried, but I can tell you that I have always come back for more.

Irene ordered a sundae with caramel daze ice cream – vanilla ice cream with chocolate bits and caramel running through it. I teased her because when she was asked if she wanted a cherry on top she said “no.” I asked her if she was on a diet? (The nice thing is that you can have your sundae anyway you want it made.) She had butterscotch topping and almonds on top.

I had a sundae with Dulce de Leche ice cream, caramel sauce, whipped cream, almonds and a cherry. It was so good. Believe me – another surprising thing – the price was so very reasonable. Our sundae gave us each change from $5. Do you know of any other ice cream place around that gives you back change like that? That in itself is enough incentive to keep going back for more.

Believe me – our next widow function is July 27 – and you will find the entire group there then. I’m driving!

El Jardín closes, to reopen as new Mexican concept

Rise & Shine Hospitality Group’s El Jardín restaurant in Liberty Station is undergoing a total transformation, as it temporarily shut-ers its doors to become a casual Mexican food restaurant renamed El Jardín Cantina.

Award-winning chef Claudette Zepeda-Wilkins will not be a part of this concept, as the new direction will be a collaboration of three Rise & Shire chefs, who will create a menu brimming with fresh, authentic flavors. The bar will focus on signature “margarita-forward” cocktail selections and a line-up of beers and wine.

The restaurant will close for four weeks to refresh the physical space, reopening on Wednesday, Aug. 28. When the unveiling will celebrate the opening of the new El Jardín Cantina. The changes will be fresh, with welcoming furinshings and décor evoking an unpretentious, festive vibe.

Teenage wave land at Super Girl Pro

Seventeen year-old Samantha Sibley, from San Clemente, overcame a stacked field of top-ranked competitors to stand atop the Nissin Super Girl Surf Pro podium in Oceanside on July 28, earning her first World Qualifying Series title and becoming the youngest champion to wear the Super Girl Pro cape. Previous Super Girl Pro champ, Tatiana Weston-Webb (Brazil) finished second, with last year’s runner-up Caroline Marks (Florida), and Bronte Macaulay (Australia) earning third.

The tournament saw top-ranked surfers such as Sage Erickson, Malia Manuel and Johanne Defay eliminated on Saturday, and teenagers (Sibley, Marks, Lelani McGonagle, and Kirra Pinkerton) take four of the eight slots in the Quarterfinals on Sunday, with Marks and Sibley advancing to the Semifinals.

Another teenage surfer, Brooke Young, who recently graduated from Point Loma High, competed on Friday at the tournament for the first time. She finished third in her heat and did not advance, but was happy just to make the cut in my first Super Girl event.

“I decided to go big or go home in my heat and went for the bigger more critical turns, but the waves weren’t going my way unfortunately,” she said. “This event is full of some of the best surfers from around the world, so every heat is competitive.”

Super Girl Pro is the largest female surf contest in the world, which focuses on women-powered entertainment and inspiration, both in and out of the water. “The event is known for it’s female empowerment, but it is also a big event worth a lot of points,” Young said. “However, all of the girls are so relaxed and having fun, you would hardly know it’s so important. Before the event, I was free-surfing in Oceanside and the entire lineup was girls. That never happens!”

Young plans to pursue a career in surfing by competing in QS events while taking college classes online. “The events are around the world so there’s going to be a lot of travel, but I love it.”

For Sibley, the win skyrockets her from No. 52 to No. 6 on the QS rankings, with a strong shot to land a spot on the Championship Tour (CT) next season.

“This is the best day of my life! I can’t believe I just won the Super Girl Pro,” said an emotional Sibley. “I’ve been coming to this event ever since I was little, standing on this beach, taking pictures with all my heroes, and now to be the Super Girl. I’m at a loss for words.”

Weston-Webb wasn’t the only CT elite Sibley had to get past. She also served up a stunning win over fellow 17-year-old and 2018 Rookie of the Year Marks in the Semifinals.

Sibley’s versatile approach with her vertical backhand and powerful forehand attack helped her garner some of the day’s highest scores along the way – including the event’s highest heat total of a 15.76 (out of a possible 20) in Round 5 and a single wave score of 8.00 (out of a possible 10) in the Final.

Pointers begin preparing for 2019 football season

By SCOTT HOPKINS | The Beacon

With just weeks before their Aug. 23 opener, the Point Loma High Pointers football team has already been preparing for months.

During a May-June period, coaches worked with returning players and continued installing offensive and defensive plans while evaluating the team’s conditioning and skills at each position.

Veteran head coach Mike Hastings knows what it takes to produce a winning football team and has been meeting with players to develop leadership skills and other qualities in his teen athletes.

Hastings assumed the reins in 1998 after assisting legendary Edens experienced health issues.

Last year’s varsity fell to 5-6 overall, 1-1 in Western League where the Pointers’ only win was over Lincoln by a 31-20 score.

Then, with unfortunate CIF playoff scheduling, the Pointers were paired with Lincoln in the first round, the Hornets stinging the Dogs this time by a 15-21 score.

Hastings doesn’t shy away from the tough competition.

The leagues are based on power rankings and our goal this year is to compete well in that league to allow us to continue to be in it,” he said, noting the league is composed of the top five schools in the city.

Hastings has many returning players this year, now including some boys who have come up through the Junior Pointers program. Last season’s quarterback passing system has ended.

“We’ve told both (seniors) Jason Peres and Trey Cobb there will be competition and one will win the job,” Hastings said.

Using a spread offense mixed with the traditionally strong Pointer running game should give the team a good balance, Hastings noted.

The Pointers will remain in the same Western League, one of the CIF’s toughest along with county powers Cathedral Catholic, Madison and St. Augustine and a resurgent Lincoln team.

Next First Friday to feature dance performances

First Friday Arts District in Liberty Station, which “super-sized” months ago, continues on Aug. 2 with an Art in the Garden theme. This popular free arts event, which takes place the First Friday of every month from 5 to 9 p.m. throughout the Arts District’s 28-acre campus, will feature an arts movie and free dance performances. Enjoy Danzarts performances and live music while exploring the galleries, museums, artist studios, shops and dining at historic Liberty Station.

August’s First Friday showcases a free outdoor film screening of “At Dardenne’s Gate” under the stars thanks to event sponsor San Diego Watercolor Society. The film screening will be on the North Promenade starting at 8 p.m.

After 10 years, the monthly Friday night happening has grown into one of San Diego’s biggest innovative arts events. Guests can meet working artists and enjoy dance, theatre and music performances, as well as discover intriguing public art installations.

Andrew Waltz, NTU Foundation associate director of marketing and communications, noted the Arts District continues to evolve.

“When we started in 2009, the Arts District had seven completed buildings,” Waltz said. “Ten years later, we’ve grown to 45 renovated buildings filled with more than 145 organizations and businesses including art galleries, artist studios, museums, cafes, a food market and more.”

Waltz added the event’s name change to First Friday Arts District, “reflects our new approach to this signature event and puts the focus on the arts, the community and the visitor experience. Now, the First Friday Arts District name says when it is and where it is.”

“We wanted a different narrative to bring in a different audience, folks coming to enjoy the music as well as the art,” Waltz said. “We hope to keep people on their feet with a whole evening of
