PACIFIC BEACH BUSINESS AWARDS PRESENTED

Discover Pacific Beach held the 2019 Casino Night and Awards on March 28 aboard the William D Evans Sternwheeler. The night consisted of lively casino game action, a three-course meal by Bahia Hotel and an award ceremony celebrating outstanding businesses and volunteers.

“The annual Casino Night and Awards is a great opportunity to celebrate the diverse business mix we have in PB,” said Sara Berns, Discover PB executive director. “It’s great to see business owners from restaurants, pet shops and realties all gather together and have a chance to connect as well as an opportunity for us to thank all of those that support Discover PB throughout the year.”

The results: New Business Award – The Facility Dance Studio; Design and Improvement Award – Maverick’s Beach Club; Heart of PB Award – Crown Point Coffee; Community volunteer – Brian Dunlap, The Mad Beet; Community patron – Jacob Gelfand, Campland on the Bay; and Duran-Galliher Community Spirit – Debbie Conca, Mr. Frosties.

Due to the different school systems and diversity of visitors, spring break runs through March and April, said Sara Berns, executive director of Discover PB. “We encourage people to be patient and hospitable, of course, as we are a leading visitor site in San Diego. There are families who save for more than a year to take vacations, and with the world becoming more accessible, what used to be a given isn’t necessarily any more,” said Berns. “Many of our small businesses depend on the tourist season, and those are your neighbors and friends.”

Continued Berns: “So if you find yourself behind someone driving a little too slow with Arizona plates, keep these things in mind before yelling ‘Go home zonie!’ Of course, as always, we want people to be safe and get out and enjoy what will hopefully be our renowned weather soon.”

CONSTRUCTION UNDER WAY ON TROLLEY TUNNEL

Crews have begun work in preparation for construction of the Trolley underpass at La Jolla Colony Drive. To accommodate construction, lanes on La Jolla Colony Drive will be reconfigured to provide one lane in each direction. Construction is expected to be complete by late 2019.

Some full weekend closures may be required throughout construction, during which time, there will be no access to La Jolla Colony Drive from east of the Interstate 5 on- and off-ramps to Rosenda Court. One lane of northbound and southbound traffic will remain open on La Jolla Colony Drive, except during intermittent closures.

Access to Rosenda Court and to Gilman Drive West will remain open, except during intermittent closures. Work will be scheduled Sunday through Thursday from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. when weekday closures are necessary.

Detour routes and signage will be in place with those passing through urged to heed all traffic signs and use caution when traveling near the work area. Work activities will include drilling, road widening, excavation, removal of dirt and concrete construction. Work requires the use of heavy machinery and will generate noise. Crews will minimize impacts as much as possible.

Town Council pursuing new off-leash dog park at Crown Point

Some Pacific Beach dog owners are frustrated with the lack of adequate off-leash dog parks in the area. So Pacific Beach Town Council president Brian White did something about it.

"After hearing these concerns at our Jan. 16 PB Town Council forum, I began taking pictures of feasible options in Pacific Beach, eventually honing in on a grassy field on the northeastern edge of Crown Point Park," White said.

"With ample parking in the adjacent lot and public restrooms nearby, it seems like an ideal place for an off-leash fenced dog park," he said. "This site would be a huge asset for dog owners and their pups all across Pacific Beach and surrounding areas."

Subsequently, Pacific Beach Town Council’s board voted to pursue White’s suggested site in Crown Point Park as a potential designated off-leash dog area.

Presently, there’s only one off-leash dog park available in PB: Capehart at 4747 Soledad Mountain Road. But there are significant problems with it.

And upgrading Capehart properly would be a big-ticket item. A recently released preliminary estimate of costs for improving both the large- and small-dog areas of Capehart was pegged by the City at about $612,000. White’s proposed Crown Point off-leash dog park calls for:

- Use of a large grassy area next to Mission Bay.
- Fencing to be installed around the perimeter.
- Ample parking to be made available in the adjacent lot.
- Access to public restrooms.
- The ease with which the site could be made ADA-feasible due to its flatness.
- Ample space to be made available for exercise and socializing, which are good for the health and well-being of dogs.
- The park doubling as a social hub for humans.

White questioned the adequacy of Capehart.

"Many believe that no matter how much money you put into Capehart, that it will never really serve the needs of PB," he said. "That’s why we’re searching for an alternative."

And the problem with searching for alternatives, any alternative, said White, "is there’s always a draw-back to anything that you look at."

White noted there have also been complaints regarding Capehart’s parking and play area for off-leash dogs. As of now, there are only small parking lots for off-leash dogs in PB, which are good for the health and well-being of dogs.

PB leaders applaud mayor’s stance on vehicle habitation

With complaints ballooning from residents about problems with people living legally in their vehicles on public streets, Mayor Kevin Faulconer and District 2 Councilmember Dr. Jennifer Campbell have proposed reversing course.

The pair at a March 25 press conference at Mission Bay Park unveiled plans for a new ordinance once again making vehicle habitation illegal. They also advocated expanding the City’s Safe Parking Program, which allows unused parking space to be used overnight by San Diegans inhabiting their vehicles.

City Council recently repealed a 1983 ordinance prohibiting residents from living in a vehicle on streets within city limits. That decision followed U.S. District Judge Anthony J. Battaglia’s ruling in 2018 that the ordinance “was both vague on its face and being arbitrarily and discriminatorily applied.”

“If you are living out of your vehicle because you have nowhere else to go, we want to help you,” said Faulconer. “At the same time, residents and businesses have a right to clean and safe neighborhoods. We will not allow conduct that takes advantage of San Diego’s generosity and destroys the quality of life in our communities.”

“I applauded the mayor’s action, which balances the need to provide more assistance and services to San Diegans living in their vehicles in need of a helping hand, with the concerns about health and safety we’ve heard from our beach communities,” Campbell said.

“The South Shores parking lot on South Shores Park Drive is an appropriate location for safe parking expansion with more than 200 spaces and bathroom facilities onsite. South Shores could be rapidly transitioned into a safe overnight parking location with space for cars and oversized vehicles,” she said. “Vehicle habitations is a city-wide issue, and as San Diego’s biggest tourism draw, our beach areas need protection because I don’t think RV campgrounds make for good postcards and travel brochures,” said Pacific Beach Town Council president Brian White. “Beach and bay area parking needs to be accessible for all San Diegans coming from all over the city to enjoy, rather than being monopolized by van-lifers parked for weeks at a time.”

White added he’s “very encouraged by the new ordinance on the way coupled with the safe-lot parking alternatives because it’s the right formula going forward. Without bathrooms available to many vehicle dwellers, it has created a very unsanitary situation on our residential streets, sidewalks and private yards, so we’re glad to know more safe lots will be opening up to give people what they need.”

Faulconer intends to introduce his new ordinance at the April 17 meeting of the Public Safety and Livable Neighborhoods Committee.

“We used those forms in the composition of the playground to show vibrancy, whimsy and color, playing off Belmont Park’s amusement aspects,” Schmidt said. “We’re weaving these elements into each of the playground’s components.”

Schmidt added playground upgrades will include a playful rope structure and a picnic pavilion that he said will “provide a great tapestry for color,” to be included with “steel umbrellas to be located throughout the Cove for shade.”

Nguyen added the walkway, picnic tables and other amenities in Bonita Cove West are also to be improved.

In 2016 voters approved Measure J, which extended 2008’s Proposition C, earmarks a portion of Mission Bay lease revenue for capital investments in Mission Bay and other regional parks for 30 more years—generating an estimated $1.5 billion through 2069.

In 2017, the Oversight Committee approved the Mission Bay Park Improvement Fund, a 10-year plan for long-term investments.

New brewer creates new brews for Pacific Beach AleHouse

By Dave Schwab | Beach & Bay Press

Pacific Beach AleHouse has a new head brewer and a refreshing lineup of new craft brews.

Dan Enjem, head of the brew crew at the Alehouse, started out home brewing in 2005. After working eight years for Adventure 16 in the outdoors industry, Enjem found himself focusing again toward brewing, taking prerequisite courses hoping to get into UC San Diego's inaugural brewing program.

"Then I got a job at Thorn Street Brewery in North Park when they first started out, then worked for Ballast Point in Scripps Ranch and Miramar," Enjem said of his apprenticeship. "It was high-volume, fast-paced, brewing about 3 1/2 to four times a shift. We made 43 different beer styles."

Then he heard about the opening at PB Alehouse, assuming the helm of the brewing room in the back of the pub at 721 Grand Ave. in November 2018.

PB AleHouse has served its own house-brewed beers for the past decade, which made it a perfect fit for Enjem. "I don’t like doing the same thing over and over again," he said. "I really like to mix it up, do something different all the time."

Enjem has brought his 10-plus years of brewing experience to relaunching PB Alehouse's brewery. Two of his most recent craft creations are SunSetter Raspberry Berliner Weisse and Crystal Pier Pale Ale.

"The fermenting takes a week to two weeks depending on the beer," Enjem said.

Enjem’s personal stamp is on all the brews he crafts. And what he makes offers something to please nearly everyone regardless of age or taste.

"When I came in I changed the recipes and brought in new ones," Enjem said. "I have a Japanese lager that is really light and drinkable. A blond ale that’s very light for novice beer drinkers who want something smooth. I’ve got a red, a stout and a Berliner Weisse that has raspberry in it.

1416-A GARNET AVE. PACIFIC BEACH | 858-886-7247
Pacific Beach social worker Thera Storm is proud that her 4-year-old daughter Carlisle (Carlie) Joy Storm is being positively influenced by her humanism.

Last month, Thera read Carlie a story from San Diego Zoo’s ZooNooz magazine titled “Hanging on by a Limb,” about donating to feed baby animals. That story prompted Carlie to request that her upcoming fourth birthday party be turned into a fundraiser for “baby bears,” much to the delighted surprise of her mother.

“The article said $30 pays for a week’s worth of formula for a baby bear,” said Thera. “[Carlie] said, ‘We need $30. We need to do a fundraiser.’”

So Thera, a certified grief recovery specialist, and husband Nate, came up with having a “penny pop-a-thon” at Carlie’s birthday party. “We will put bubble wrap on the floor and give each child a pedometer,” Thera said.

“The kids will get to jump on the bubble wrap for three minutes. Parents have been asked to donate a ‘penny per pop’ (whatever the pedometer reads after 3 minutes).”

The birthday pop-a-thon will be Saturday, April 6 from 11 a.m. to 12:40 p.m. at PB Woman’s Club at 1721 Hornblend St. “We think it will be a fun event and we are just so excited to teach [Carlie] the importance of donating our time, money and talents to organizations that are fighting for vulnerable populations – even bear cubs,” said Thera.

Storm has also been teaching her daughter social responsibility by picking up trash with her during their daily strolls. “We have gloves now in the stroller, and our goal is to pickup up three pieces of trash a day,” she said. “I’m trying to teach her about taking care of vulnerable populations. I’ve also had her handing out sack lunches to people on the streets in Pacific Beach. It’s cool to see her wanting to take care of other people, even the little bears.”

Of their success in teaching their daughter social responsibility in caring for the less fortunate, Thera said, “It’s heartwarming.”

Carlisle Joy Storm is using her birthday party to raise funds for bears.

- FOPB will present "A Night at the Speakeasy," at Marina Village on April 26, from 6 to 11 p.m. Enjoy a night full of fun, food, entertainment, and fundraising. Buy tickets and/or make a donation at pbe.schoolauction.net/speakeasy/register/ticket sales. Thank you for supporting Pacific Beach Elementary – a night celebrating the Roaring '20s awaits.

- The school's auditorium was filled with more than 200 students and their families engaging in fun and interactive science activities. This year’s theme, “The Science of Magic,” revealed that simple scientific concepts can be observed and implemented anywhere, anytime, and with magical results. Parent volunteers joined experts from the Fleet Science Center, Point Loma Nazarene University, the Audubon Society, the League of Extraordinary Scientists, and the San Diego Zoo Institute for Conservation Research to bring 18 hands-on science stations to the event. Participants recreated the phases of the moon using Oreo cookies, visualized the DNA of a living organism by looking at its banding patterns on a gel, created electricity using simple materials like magnets and copper, and so much more. "The best part of science night was when we shrunk marshmallows in a vacuum chamber," said first grader David V., who spent half his time at science night at the PLNU vacuum chamber station. "It was like magic because we turned the marshmallow big and small."

The Pacific Beach Hospitality Group, a subcommittee of Discover Pacific Beach, hosted a community spring cleaning trash clean up Monday, April 1.

More than 75 people, representing 16 businesses, met up at PB Alehouse to help clean up the business district during busy spring break. The group collected more than 80 bags of trash along Garnet Avenue, Mission Boulevard and the Boardwalk. They celebrated with an after party at PB Shore Club.

"The hospitality group is made up of our bar, restaurant and hotel businesses who don’t typically work Monday to Friday, so they wanted to plan something their employees could participate in and give back to the community," said Sara Berns, executive director of Discover Pacific Beach.

Prizes were awarded to Sandbar Sports Cell for weirdest item found, a well-used Rasta wig. Other weird items found were a Lil’ Tikes car, shopping carts and a plastered crab claw.

Team spirit went to the Tavern, who won the team spirit award, are Calee Farina, Ash Manning, Sibby Sibetang, Brianna Cook, Tehya Peterson, and Megan Borges.

Need to satisfy your burrito love? Here’s our guide to the best at the beach

San Diego is known as one of the best places for beaches, breweries, and burritos. And Pacific and Mission beaches, along with La Jolla, excel in burritos. Whether it’s for a hearty breakfast or a nap-inducing lunch on the beach, the local shops deliver the burrito classics — California with fries, or carne asada with guac, or machaca with salsa verde — that keep gringos coming back for more.

PACIFIC BEACH

At Taco Surf, their breakfast burrito — which has been feeding surfers since 1989 — comes with two eggs in a white or whole wheat tortilla, with a choice of meat, and other options including hashbrowns, beans, cheese, and rice. After breakfast, go back for their carne asada burrito, which was named No. 47 on the “50 Best Burritos in America 2018” list from The Daily Meal. 858-272-3877

La Perla Cocina Mexicana at the beach on Emerald Street is always busy, which is a good sign. The eatery has a huge selection of burritos, including Machaca, lamb, and a King Kong option that is stuffed with meat and a chile relleno. But you can’t go wrong with their carne asada burrito, which was named No. 34 on the “50 Best Burritos in America 2018” list from The Daily Meal. 735 Emerald St. 858-274-3038

Looking for something a little different? Taqueria Los Ruiz in North PB has an extraordinary hashbrown burrito, which includes eggs, ham, bacon, sausage, homemade potatoes, and cheese. Or try their Champey burrito filled with carne asada, grilled shrimp, guacamole, and salsa Mexicana. 1092 Garnet Ave. 858-291-8424

Mr. Ruriberto’s Taco Shop on Garnet Street is known for quality California burritos and the beach at Ramiro’s Taco Shop and make sure to order their Machaca and California burritos. Make sure to ask for extra red sauce, which locals swear by.

MISSION BAY

At Mr. Ruriberto’s Mexican Food, some of their go-to burritos include their California burrito and their surf and turf option. Enjoy their California burrito — served with either Mexican or enchilada salsa — while watching the Giant Dipper roller coaster at Belmont Park next door. 3202 Mission Blvd. 858-488-1610
