City Council votes to further study impact of short-term rentals

By DAVE SCHWAB

A motion by City Council President Sherri Lightner, which some feel would have largely banned short-term vacation rentals in single-family neighborhoods, was defeated by a 7-2 vote on Tuesday, Nov. 1.

An alternative motion brought by Councilmember Todd Gloria was then passed by the same 7-2 margin. Lightner of Council District 1 and Lorie Zapf of Council District 2 cast the dissenting votes on both motions. Gloria’s countermotion requested city staff do a fiscal analysis to determine the cost of greater short-term vacation rentals (STVR) enforcement citywide, asked staff to draft and return with a comprehensive ordinance better defining and regulating STVRs, as well as remanding the matter back to the Council’s Smart Growth and Land Use Committee for further consideration.

Yea or nay on Prop. J for Mission Bay plan?

By DAVE SCHWAB

How should you vote on Proposition J on Nov. 8?

According to the mayor’s office, you should vote yes because Prop. J’s passage would extend Mission Bay Regional Park’s lease as well as increase the amount of lease revenue available to the park over time, as well as streamline the process for completing prioritized capital improvement projects there.

But former City Council members Donna Frye and Ed Harris are asking voters to look more deeply into the ballot proposal, which would change the current allocation of lease revenue derived from city-owned property in Mission Bay Park. They insist Prop. J is flawed and sets a bad precedent for the regional park.

They argue the measure’s passage will open the back door to more commercial development perhaps even a hotel — which arguably violates the intent of planners seeking to preserve mission bay park as a family jewel. We need to protect that for our kids.

New plan may reduce acreage

Fiesta Island has received the USA Today 10Best reader’s choice award for Best Dog Park in America, which couldn’t have come at a better time since the off-leash, fenced-off section of the island off Mission Bay is imperiled by future development.

The manmade island at 1590 Mission Bay Drive offers off-leash areas for dogs to run and play on the sand and in the water and picnic and bonfire facilities, and is a haunt for recreationalists of all types. Fiesta Island is also home to various water sports and features 27 miles of beach.

Fiesta Island was nominated by the pet-friendly travel website BringFido.com, and beat nine other dog parks do.com, and beat nine other dog parks to win the award, which was announced in August by USA Today.

Penelope and Mocha (above) pause for the sunset as they enjoy their daily adventures at the dog park on Fiesta Island. Dogs meet and greet each other on the beach at Fiesta Island (below).
Connor is a 7-year-old boy with Duchenne muscular dystrophy and Jinxy is a Golden Retriever that is happiest with her best friend. The two seem to match, on the outside and inside.

“Jinxy just loves to snuggle with Connor,” says his mother, Dana. “It’s wonderful to see them together. She makes Connor so happy and feel so confident!”

Dana’s emotion comes from joy, gratitude and relief. Connor is not an ordinary kid and Jinxy is not an ordinary dog. Connor has Duchenne muscular dystrophy and Jinxy is an assistance dog, provided free of charge by Canine Companions for Independence. Canine Companions is a non-profit organization that enhances the lives of people with disabilities by providing highly trained assistance dogs and ongoing support to ensure quality partnerships.

The two were paired up last May, and Jinxy’s companionship has been significant for Connor. She has been so life-changing that Connor has decided to give back to Jinxy’s alma mater. So far, he has raised $2,500 through DogFest San Diego, a walk and festival held Oct. 29 in Liberty Station (www.cci.org/dogfestsandiego).

Connor’s disability makes him different from his peers. He can’t do all of the typical activities of boys his age. Jinxy helps close that gap. “Jinxy provides a great way to introduce new people to Connor’s disability,” says Dylan, his father. “It’s a good, positive way to start talking about why he’s different.”

Dana continues, “Jinxy gives a common ground for Connor to start talking to people in social situations. She’s a good friend and companion that is with him all of the time.” That includes when Connor is getting medical treatments and therapies, as well as when he just needs a friend.

On top of that, Jinxy can help Connor with practical tasks like getting dressed and undressed, and tugging doors and drawers open.

“I will never forget when, during the first few days of training at Canine Companions, they brought Jinxy up to Connor and they started snuggling,” recalls Dylan. “Connor said, ‘I want to do this forever!’ My heart melted and I just felt like this is the exact, perfect thing that we could be doing for Connor.”

Connor, Dana, Dylan and Jinxy graduated together after completing an intense, residential, two-week Team Training course at Canine Companions’ Southwest Regional Center in Oceanside. During Team Training, students are strategically matched with assistance dogs and learn how to work with them safely and effectively. The dogs are trained in about 40 commands to help with everyday practical tasks before they are ready to graduate as 24/7 helpers.

Thanks to Canine Companions’ generous supporters, the dogs, their training and ongoing follow-up support are provided free of charge. Visit kmalatino@cci.org for more information on Canine Companions for Independence.

Mission Bay’s Dennis Pugh returns, Arian Foster retires

By DAVE THOMAS

Although separated by a number of years in age, both Dennis Pugh and Arian Foster have connections to Mission Bay High. Pugh, who had previously served as head baseball coach at Mission Bay High for more than 25 years, will be back on the baseball diamond this coming season to lead the Bucs. Pugh, who had served as head coach at Cal State San Marcos over the last decade, put a winner on the field during his time at Mission Bay. That said the program has struggled in terms of a winning record for nearly a decade in his absence. Pugh, who tallied more than 600 wins as Mission Bay’s head coach, recorded eight sections titles during his initial stay with the Bucs. Mission Bay, which will slug it out with other opponents in Division III this coming season, had been under the direction of head coach Chad Starkey recently. Meantime, Mission Bay High product Foster, one of the more formidable NFL running backs over the last decade with Houston, announced recently that he was stepping aside from the game. Foster, who played eight seasons in the league, has battled injuries for a significant part of his career. The former Mission Bay Buccaneer played his first seven seasons with the Texans, finishing his career this season in Miami. Foster, who led the league in rushing in 2010, was a four-time Pro Bowler. In an online essay announcing his retirement from the sport, Foster noted, “My father always said you’ll know when it’s time to walk away. It has never been more clear to me than right now. I’m walking away with peace.” While one career apparently comes to a close for good on the gridiron, another one is getting a rebirth on the baseball field.

Mission Bay girls tennis players ace success

By DAVE THOMAS

When it comes to the sport of tennis, there are both individual and team accomplishments for the taking. In terms of the Mission Bay High girls tennis team, a pair of young ladies have been helping guide the Bucs to better play this season.

Senior team captain Ludmila Raynal and freshman No. 1 singles player McKenna Mountain are two of the reasons the program is growing. Mountain showed how dominant she was in league play this season by rolling to a 30-0 record. Meantime, Raynal, who is a Mission Bay coach, recorded eight sections titles with the program.

Raynal: As a team, I believe we have come so much further than we have any other year. The girls have been so motivated to be better, and that alone motivates me a lot. Knowing that I am one of the two seniors on the team really makes me feel like I have a duty, which includes pushing the rest of the girls to play to the best of their abilities, while also being someone they can joke around with and rely on.

Mountain: This season we’ve had some tough losses, but we always fix our problems. BBP: What do you enjoy about playing tennis for Mission Bay?

Raynal: One of my favorite things about playing tennis for MBHS is that it’s truly one of the few sports where it really all depends on just you. There are many team sports out there, and as a tri-athlete, I can definitely say that tennis has taught me how to be an autonomous and independent player.

Mountain: I have really enjoyed being part of a team because I’ve never really experienced anything like that before, so it was fun growing as a team.

BBP: What has this season been like both individually and as a team?

Raynal: My coach is someone who doesn’t only tell you how to hold your racket or how to swing. My coach can teach you how to change a negative mindset. When I make a mistake and put myself down for it, instead of just giving me advice on my technicalities, he coaches me on how to assess the situation with a positive attitude. I think this is very important because I strongly believe that you can only go so far with bad thoughts.

Mountain: Our coach has improved my game by making goals for me to achieve. Maybe one match, he would say “try to get three aces this game” or “only hit your backhand with slice.” Things like that so I can work on different areas of my game. BBP: What advice would you have for any girls thinking about coming out for the team next season?

Raynal: I would tell them to not give up on the sport. Some girls have come and gone, and I couldn’t stress enough how big of a mistake that is. I’m aware of how hard it can be to start a new sport, but the coach and the girls on the team will always help you along the way.

Pacific Beach surfer rides 129 waves for charity

Riley Santos, a 16-year-old Winston School sophomore, has tackled many challenges in his life. His latest accomplishment – spending more than nine hours surfing waves after wave at Mission Beach to raise money for charity.

As a result of surfing 129 waves in a single day, the Pacific Beach resident raised $1,527 for Boys to Men, an organization that provides mentoring for fatherless and at-risk teen boys. Santos and some friends rode the waves for the organization’s recent 100 Wave Challenge.

“It was really fun, and it’s great raising money for this important organization,” Santos said. “Boys need dads and other mentors to help stay away from drugs and have a good life.”

An avid surfer, Santos said his friends were up for the challenge, and when he heard about it, he was too. Santos surfs most days in the mornings or after school, and said he enjoys the fact that every day is a new surfing experience.

“The waves and surf conditions are different every day, and there are so many fun things you can do on a board, including switch foot,” Santos said.

Santos started surfing about two and a half years ago, when his dad and friends grabbed their boards and ran into the water. He followed along, and has been hooked ever since. He also enjoys fishing and sailing.

New Sonic set to open on Garnet Ave.; locals concerned about traffic impact

By DAVE SCHWAB

A new Sonic Drive-In is opening on Garnet Ave., sandwiched in-between the Nite Owl and a used car lot.

Restaurant franchise owner Kasey Suryan said Pacific Beach’s Sonic will be the eighth in San Diego County and the third in the City of San Diego.

Under development for months, the almost-completed Sonic has captured the notice of countless passersby, as well as drawing questions and concerns from locals. Some are worried about whether the new eatery will have enough parking onsite, and whether its access will be sufficient given its location near one of the beach community’s busiest intersections just off Mission Bay Drive on Garnet.

Suryan said the site was chosen after a years-long search because of Garnet.

Its high-profile location and its disadvantages just off Mission Bay Drive on Garnet were approved by the City without any public input. As the improvements were built to zoning ‘by right,’ there will be five dedicated parking spots onsite.

Not everyone is pleased, however, with the new Sonic’s location, or how it was approved by the city. Brian Curry, chair of Pacific Beach Planning Group, said he made several inquiries with the city on behalf of local residents concerned about the potential Balboa Avenue traffic impact as a result of Sonic.

“No traffic study was ever made public, and as far as I know was not required by the City,” said Curry. “The new Sonic and A-1 self-storage facility were approved by the City without any public input. As the improvements were built to zoning ‘by right,’ the City did not require the project be brought before the PBPG.”

Curry added, “This is another unfortunate circumstance, similar to what happened at the new Trader Joe’s shopping center, in which the City’s Development Services Department will accommodate developers and not require public outreach and input on significant community construction projects. Note that the planning group has not reviewed, nor had any input, on new development on the north side of the 800 block of Garnet (old PB club/dance place) and on the waterfront next to the Shore Club (old crab place). Development Services appears to work for developers rather than the public.”

Suryan’s doing everything possible to ensure a smooth transition for his new PB Sonic.

“We will have traffic control set up the first few weeks, two people I’ve identified just managing traffic in and out making sure everything’s smooth and there are no delays on Garnet,” he said, adding, “We’re also hoping to work with the Nite Owl’s owners next door to utilize some of their parking during the first couple weeks.”

His new eatery’s menu was characterized by Suryan as American fare — burgers, fries, tater tots, all-beef hot dogs, handmade onion rings and frozen treats.

“How busy will the new Sonic be? ‘We don’t know,’ said Suryan. ‘There’s a lot of unknowns. It’s really hard to know.’”

Sonic is an American drive-in, fast-food restaurant chain based in Oklahoma City that was founded by Troy N. Smith Sr., a milkman, just after World War II.

A man was ordered Oct. 27 to stand trial for allegedly kidnapping and raping a German foreign exchange student in Pacific Beach on New Year’s Eve.

The victim is now back in Germany and did not testify in the preliminary hearing of Jacob Paul Skorniak, 50, but what she told San Diego Police officers about the incident was discussed in court.

San Diego Superior Court Judge Louis Hanioian set a trial date for April 7, 2017. Skorniak pleaded not guilty to all charges and remains in jail on $1 million bail.

Deputy District Attorney Lisa Fox said Skorniak faces a life sentence in prison if he’s convicted of rape and kidnapping for rape.

Police officers testified the 21-year-old victim went with some friends to a bar in Mission Beach on New Year’s Eve.

She became ill from intoxication and later to another bar in Pacific Beach on Dec. 31, 2015. The victim became ill from intoxication and decided to go home to her apartment via an Uber drive.

The victim got out of the Uber car and threw up on the ground. Skorniak was nearby after the Uber left and he abducted her at knifepoint.

She told officers Skorniak drove her to a rural area and sexually assaulted her in his red pickup truck, according to the victim.

Skorniak used a knife to cut some of her clothes off while she cried and the call went dead.

期间,她被Skorniak用刀割了一些衣服并哭泣。

Good Time Poké and The Grass Skirt opening Nov. 7 in Pacific Beach

SDCM, the creative brain trust behind several of San Diego’s hottest restaurants, including the award-winning Kettner Exchange: the beach-side culinary hot-spot Firehouse American Eatery + Lounge; Vin De Syrah and the city’s newest contemporary donut concept, Devil's Dozen, announced it will open Good Time Poké and The Grass Skirt – a combination grab-and-go poke shop and hidden tiki lounge on Nov. 7 at 910 Grand Ave.

“Tiki is something we’re pretty passionate about here,” said Matt Spencer, co-owner of SDCM.

“From beverage director Steven Tuttle’s love of tiki cocktails, to corporate executive chef Brian Redzkowski’s mastery of Southeast Asian cuisine, The Grass Skirt and Good Time Poké will combine the fun, lighthearted, escapist nature of tiki culture, with the creativity and unsurpassed food and beverage quality guests have come to expect from our restaurants.”

Good Time Poké will offer a fresh, traditional-yet-innovative menu of creative takes on the traditional Hawaiian dish – from tako (octopus), to ahi (yellowfin tuna) poke and beyond, as well as kombucha on tap.

In the evenings, The Grass Skirt, inspired by Imbibe Magazine’s 2015 Bar of the Year, Lost Lake in Chicago, will welcome guests – paying homage to classic tiki cocktails, culture and design, with food and beverage menu items set to include:

- Big-eye tuna cones with bonito flake, pickled ginger and sesame
- Okinomiyaki fries topped with bonito flakes, hoisin and scallion
- House-made kimchi fried rice
- Shrimp toast sandwich with Vietnamese herbs, hoisin and spicy ale
- Carmen Miranda – a cocktail made with white rum, añejo rum, overproof Hawaiian rum, lime, pineapple, coconut, banana and cinnamon; and
- Oaxacan Dead – a blend of mezcal, The Grass Skirt rum blend, pineapple, lime, passion fruit, pomegranate and absinthe.

Designed by famed designer Davis Krumins, of Davis Ink Ltd., and located on the former site of Good Time Charlie’s in Pacific Beach, the bar will employ the use of traditional tiki elements interlaced with seductive details that will transport guests to a place of eternal sunset. The space will be comfortable, fun, and memorable – with ample booth seating, fire pit tables and swings for the more adventurous tiki-lovers.

Karl Strauss named Mid-Scale Brewing Company of the Year

Karl Strauss Brewing Co. won two gold medals, two bronze medals and the coveted Mid-Scale Brewing Company of the Year award for U.S. breweries producing between 5,000 and 6 million barrels of beer per year at this year’s Great American Beer Festival, the premier U.S. beer festival and competition.

Winning a medal at this prestigious competition is no small feat, and winning four medals puts Karl Strauss in a select group of only four U.S. breweries to have won four or more medals at Great American Beer Festival this year. Four medals also means Karl Strauss was the most awarded craft brewery from Southern California at Great American Beer Festival 2016.

Karl won a bronze medal for Liquid AC, an English Style-Summer Ale, brewed at the company’s satellite brewery in La Jolla.

The other three medals were for beers submitted from the company’s main production facility in Pacific Beach. Mosaic Session IPA added to its impressive trophy case by winning its second Great American Beer Festival medal, this time a bronze in the popular Session IPA category.

Windswept Wheat won gold in the South German-Style Hefeweizen category. Queen of Tarts, a barrel aged dark sour made with Michigan tart cherries, took home gold in the highly competitive American Style-Sour Ale category.

All of these awards have come to get this kind of peer-based recognition at craft beer’s most highly regarded competition. It’s wonderful to keep winning medals from a combination of our satellite breweries and our main production facility,” said Matt Batten, president and co-founder of Karl Strauss Brewing Co.

Under Lightner’s proposal, a home would not have been able to be rented to transients for less than 30 days in most single-family zones. Additionally, renters or owners of single-family homes could not have rented out a room or space for less than seven days without proper permitting.

Following both votes, Lightner lamented that the objective of the discussion, which exceeded five hours of public testimony at Gold Hall, was to describe and define STVRs, which she pointed out are “not currently listed in the city’s Municipal Code.”

“The objective today was to start down the path of getting some enforcement on STVRs,” Lightner said, adding that STVRs “are carefully defined, visited accommodations by code enforcement. ‘I couldn’t support the motion without clarification that STVRs are Visitor accommodations and that we (city) should be able to enforce them.’ Lightner said before apologizing to what was left of the large crowd at Golden Hall.

Early on, outgoing city attorney Jon Goldsmith pointed out the STVR issue was extremely complex and difficult to deal with.

The Iron Maidens to rock Brick by Brick

By BART MENDOZA

All female Iron Maiden tribute band, The Iron Maidens perform at Brick by Brick on Nov. 12. Formed in 2001, the quintet focuses on their namesake’s golden era, with songs such as “The Trooper” and “Run to the Hills” amongst the gems in their set list. The band has three albums to their credit, but it’s live where they really deliver. Once the band starts playing the fact that it’s women playing these hard-rocking tunes becomes irrelevant – these ladies can play circles around most rockers and really are the next best thing to the real deal.

The Iron Maidens: Saturday, Nov. 12, at Brick by Brick, 1130 Buenos Ave. 8 p.m. 21 and up. $20. www.brickbybrick.com.

Anyone who enjoys Latin acoustic guitar music, ala the Gypsy Kings, will want to check out Cantua, who perform at the Firefly on Nov. 5. The perfect soundtrack to an evening out, the duo performs crowd-pleasing versions of material from through-out Led Zeppelin’s career, including New Orleans most recent album is called “Music for the Feet” and there is no reason to question the quality of their covers. www.backyardpb.com.

Dazed & Confused: Saturday, Nov. 12, at the 710 Beach Club, 710 Garnet Ave. 9 p.m. 21 and up. No cover. www.710bc.com.

By BART MENDOZA

The Bayou Brothers: Wednesday, Nov. 9 at Pacific Beach Library, 4275 Cass St. 7 p.m. All ages. No cover. www.pblibraryfriends.org.

There is lots of great original music in town, but every once in a while, it’s fun to hear the hits of yesteryear – such as the case with Dazed and Confused, who perform the songs of Led Zeppelin. The band doesn’t try to replicate Zep’s look, though the drummer does have a giant gong behind him, instead focusing on giving audiences a hot sweaty night of rock ‘n’ roll. While there are no surprises in the set list, the band performs crowd-pleasing versions of material from through-out Led Zeppelin’s career, including “Misty Mountain Hop” and “Immigrant Song,” making this a great night out for any classic rock fan.

Keith, Keilhauer recently released her debut album, “Dancing Queen,” which captures her mix of country and pop sounds to good effect. Performing on Nov. 9 at the Backyard Kitchen & Tap, Keilhauer’s easy-going persona and stage presence will win over even the most jaded music fan, making her performances a must for anyone who enjoys singer-song-writers or just a good tune.

Cajun and Zydeco favorites, The Bayou Brothers perform at the Pacific Beach Library on Nov. 9. While the boisterous good time music of New Orleans might seem to be the antithesis of what might typically be heard in a library, there is no doubt that the music is an infectious delight. One of the town’s most celebrated bands, The Bayou Brothers most recent album is called “Music for the Feet” and there is no better description of the band’s sound than that. While there is no dancing at this free event, foot tapping and clapping along is encouraged.

BEACH & BAY PRESS
By BART MENDOZA

Jazz nightspot Dizzy's is on the move once again. Beginning in 2012, owner Chuck Perrin promoted four years of concerts in the showroom at San Diego Jet Ski Rentals (4275 Mission Bay Drive) in Pacific Beach, but with the recent sale of the building, he will now be moving performances to the 200-capacity Arias Hall at the Musician’s Association (1717 Morena Blvd.). The last scheduled concert at the current site will be a Latin jazz presentation with Black Mamba on Saturday, Nov 19.

Arias Hall is the fourth home for Dizzy’s since Perrin founded it at the Culy Tracking Warehouse downtown in 2000. He stayed there for seven years before next finding a home at the San Diego Wine & Culinary Center in the Harbor Towers, from November 2007 to January 2012. After four concerts in temporary locations, 98 Bottles, McCrae Music, Tango Del Rey, and the Cosmopolitan Hotel’s Old Town, he found the Jet Ski Rentals building.

While he would prefer to stay put, Perrin is just happy to be able to continue to showcase music. He feels Arias Hall will be a good fit. “Seems like it could be a good home, with the venue focused only on music, like I like,” he said. “They’ve allowed me to schedule six shows there Nov. 15 thru Dec. 17 to test out the relationship.” He points out that he doesn’t book show to fill slots, “I try to only schedule events that excite me personally, where I sense that the performers have a passion for what they are doing,” Perrin said. The first scheduled shows at the new location include the SDSCPA Jazz Ensemble (Nov. 13), guitarists Fred Benedetti and George Strobo da (Nov. 18) and pianist Joshua White (Nov. 26).

Acclaimed pianist Danny Green, who has performed at Dizzy’s often, is happy the venue will continue. “It’s been integral to the local jazz scene in San Diego for so many years,” he said. “It’s a place where audiences can expect to hear top quality jazz all the time and jazz musicians can feel comfortable showcasing their latest material.”

In addition to running Dizzy’s, Perrin recently released a 23-track digital-only album of rarities, “Rare and Unreleased,” which he recorded with his sister from the mid 1960s through the early 1970s. The pair’s lone, self-titled, 1968 album is considered highly collectible by folk fans, with copies having sold for as much as $800. It was reissued in 2015 by Mapache Records of Spain.

“It was bittersweet going through the old songs,” he said. “Much of my early recording was done with my sister Mary, who passed away in 2003. I would like to see both a vinyl and CD issue of these tracks. “But I’m just not sure where to go to make that happen. Releasing the material digitally at least allows me to make it accessible, to get it out there into people’s ears to see if there is any demand or interest.”

In the meantime, Perrin, who turned 70 earlier this year, hopes the new location will be a good fit for Dizzy’s to work out, with plans already in place to transform their room to accommodate the “Dizzy’s vibe.”

“I’m blessed to be able to make the illusion of a place like Dizzy’s happen at all,” he said. “(A location) really is just a state of mind. I’ve long ago accepted that its operation is a day-to-day and it could all end at any moment. Kind of like life.”

PROP J

Mission Bay Park in its natural state.

And a lot of money at stake, an estimated $1.4 billion over the 30-year proposed lease extension from 2040 to 2069, which Prop. J is requesting.

The measure was voted at Pacific Beach Town Council’s Sept. 21 meeting, where representatives from the city and the mayor’s office squared off against Frye and Harris.

Katherine Johnston of the mayor’s office defended Prop. J, claiming it will have a positive impact.

“Prop. J funding guarantees the wetlands restoration,” Johnston said. “We also think it will accelerate (parks) projects. Changing the language in the (city) charter will allow us to build playground projects, do sidewalk repairs, etc.”

John said now-mayor and then-Councilman Kevin Faulconer supported Prop. C in 2008. Prop. J’s precursor, because “he wanted (lease) revenues generated in Mission Bay Park to stay in Mission Bay Park, rather than being transferred to the (city’s) general fund.”

At the September PBTC meeting, Chris tiana Ganger, city fiscal and policy analyst, said the whole idea behind lease revenue at Mission Bay was because “this beautiful public park allowing 25 percent of that park to be used for commercial leaseholds,” and that revenues generated would be “used to pay for park public improvements. That was not happening. The public, in their infinite wisdom, said ‘We think we need more than City Council policy to protect Mission Bay Park.’”

A report from the Office of the Independent Budget Analyst concluded that, if Prop. J is approved, “the greater than 3.5 million, or 35 percent, of Mission Bay lease revenue, more than $20 million, would be allocated to the City’s Regional Parks Improvement Fund with all remaining funds allocated to the Mission Bay Park Improvement Fund.”

This measure would also clarify the process for completing prioritized capital improvement projects in Mission Bay Park, and allow the City to undertake these improvements concurrently. Additionally, this measure would extend the restricted use of annual Mission Bay lease revenue taking it higher than $20 million for 30 more years from the current expiration of 2039 to 2069. Without this extension, all Mission Bay lease revenue would become unrestricted and available for general public services in 2040.

Arguing lease revenues generated in Mission Bay Park were largely diverted for decades to other city uses, despite assurances funds would be used to make public park improvements, Frye noted Prop. C was passed in 2008 with Faulconer’s support. She pointed out that measure amended the City Charter to require 75 percent of lease revenues over $20 million to be used for Mission Bay Park and the other 25 percent would be used for other regional parks.

“Now, less than 10 years later, and with no projects completed, Mayor Kevin Faulconer reverses course and plans to raid the very funds he promised to protect,” said Frye asking, “So what does Measure J do?”

So why the problems? asks Frye.

“First, no priority projects have been completed or fully funded,” she said. “Second, we do not know how much money the MBP priority projects will cost. Third, Measure J changes the definition of Mission Bay Park with the mayor really explaining what that could mean to the public. Fourth, Measure J was rushed to the ballot. Local community planning groups were not informed about the plans either. Finally, there are concerns about the mayor’s proposal to issue bonds for other parks. How would the interest on those bonds be paid and what are the financial impacts on Mission Bay Park projects?”

Brian Curry, chair of Pacific Beach Planning Group, said “Measure J is a back-door attempt by the mayor to move lease revenues/income generating in Mission Bay out of Mission Bay. The mayor wants to fund other pet projects, such as an underground parking garage in Balboa Park, and needs the money.”

Curry’s convinced J “directly conflicts with then-Councilman Faulconer’s previous position when he co-sponsored (w/Frye), Measure C, keeping money generating in Mission Bay in Mission Bay.”

The passage of Proposition J in Measure J would allow for more commercialization of Mission Bay, again in violation of the public’s preference for public rather than private use.”

Curry said Prop. J “was put on the ballot at the last minute without any public review or scrutiny. Those of us opposed did not even have time to formulate an ‘argument against’ write-up for the sample ballot. The beach communities have incredible difficulty getting funding for many public projects. Now we’re considering a provision in Measure J that would allow for more commercialization of Mission Bay, again in violation of the public’s preference for public rather than private use.”

“My understanding is the (charter) language change allows for (park) expansion through the acquisition of contiguous space — that will cause the most damage,” contends Harris. “If I passes, we may see a future situation of a parkland that is getting harder and harder to come by. This will be bad for the taxpayers. Bill Evans (hoteller) came out and said about a year ago that he wanted to build another hotel. Now we’re (voters) seeing the path. Mission Bay Park is a family jewel. We need to protect that for our kids.”
ed to preserving Fiesta Island’s Leash-Free Recreation area. The organization was created in 2006 as a response to a massive development plan area unveiled then, which originally proposed removing or moving the leash-free area.

Environmental lobbyist Chayo Chase, FIDO’s current president, when asked why Fiesta Island makes for such a great dog park replied, “Because of its size.” Noting Fiesta Island’s 90-acre, fenced-off dog park is huge compared with much smaller neighborhood dog parks, Chase added “that was too big,” while pointing out the quarter of the island now devoted to dogs and recreationalists is “pretty much perfect.”

“Smaller dog parks throughout the city just aren’t big enough for a large number of dogs — or larger dogs,” added Chase. “It’s big enough so not a lot of conflicts happen, as they do in smaller dog parks because of lack of space. The dogs are happier. The people are too.”

That’s important, concluded Chase, noting San Diego County is estimated to be home to about 700,000 dogs. FIDO’s current president.

Dr. Jean Spengel, noted Fiesta Island is “a very loyal fan base that really loves that area,” Spengel said.

“Fido has a very loyal fan base that really loves that area,” Spengel said.

“Fido has a very loyal fan base that really loves that area,” Spengel said.

Spengel said the city’s plans for Fiesta in the intervening decade have undergone “a dozen or more modifications.”

Spengel said the most recent modification in 2011 preserved the off-leash section’s 90 acres but “put a road right through the middle of it along with a proposed amphitheater. Our main point in this is a human and animal exercise area, not a little neighborhood dog park. It’s as much about people and socialization as it is about the dogs.”

Arian Collins, supervising PIO for the city, said the Park and Recreation Department began public input on a General Development Plan for Fiesta Island in 2005. In 2011 he said the plan was recommended by the Mission Bay Park Committee to go forward to the Park and Recreation board in 2011 for approval. The plan was put on hold after San Diego City Council took action to take the Park and Recreation board.

“In 2016 the process to complete the approval of the plan was transferred to the Planning Department, which is currently contracting with a design consultant to complete the process,” said Collins.

Prevent Your Landscape from Downy Mildew this Winter

A ground cover succulent known as Red Apple ice plant (Aptenia cordifolia) has been a main staple of the San Diego landscape for years. However, this popular varietal was hit hard with a fungus called downy mildew last winter, leaving many properties brown and bare. With wet, cooler months approaching, Heaviland Landscape Management urges property owners and managers to take steps now to prevent new downy mildew outbreaks and protect their Red Apple ice plants.

The downy mildew fungus thrives in damp, dark, cool conditions. It eats away at bright green ground cover, leaving slopes full of brown and decayed ice plant.

To help business and commercial property owners prevent their property from downy mildew devastation, Heaviland Landscape Management suggests these preventative measures:

- Limit use of overhead irrigation during the evening hours, as the moisture combined with dark conditions can create a breeding ground for the downy mildew fungus.
- Thin nearby trees and shrubs to increase light and improve airflow so the Red Apple ice plant leaves will dry faster after irrigation.
- Apply fungicide before a downy mildew infection occurs, as once a plant is affected it cannot be cured.
