What makes spectacular sunsets glow? The reason is in the season

The low tide and the high clouds combine to make an amazingly beautiful 'butterfly effect' sunset at Crystal Pier in Pacific Beach this winter.

‘It’s the cloud patterns in the winter that bring out more colors. It’s a great show before May Gray and June Gloom,’ said Courtney Davis, a local photographer who likes to shoot around La Jolla and Oceana Coastal Kitchen recently opened at the Catamaran Resort Hotel and Spa, offering California cuisine and ocean-inspired design to Pacific Beach.

The simple answer: It’s the clouds.

By THOMAS MELVILLE

As the sea swallows the sun, the golden hour begins to paint its splendid tapestry of colors across the sky, spinning reds and bouncing blues off clouds to create a saturation of hues that radiate in one’s soul. Or at least in one’s iPhone.

Instagram feeds and Facebook walls have been brightened by San Diego sunsets for the past six weeks as nature’s color palette has been magnificent during the early evenings of winter.

But why? What makes this season a stunning sunset kaleidoscope as opposed to summer?

The simple answer: It’s the clouds. ‘It seems January and February have the best sunsets,’ said Courtney Davis, a local photographer who likes to shoot around La Jolla and Oceana Coastal Kitchen. ‘It’s the cloud patterns in the winter that bring out more colors. It’s a great show before May Gray and June Gloom,’ the photographer said.

The difference in seasons brings a difference in clouds.

During the winter, we get more storms that move to the north: they don’t bring rain, but they do leave behind these high clouds,” said Ivory Small, science and operations officer at the National Weather Service station in San Diego.

All the colors of the spectrum are in the atmosphere, and it’s during sunrise and sunset that those colors are at a sharp angle and the clouds act as a prism separating them – especially the reds, pinks, and oranges. “High clouds are the canvas for the light in the red spectrum,” Small said.

Another factor that gives winter sunsets that extra visual value is low dynamic range (HDR) exposure, which displayed photos of nude women and required fees ranging from $299 to $350 for their deletion.

The eight-woman, four-man jury deadlocked on a conspiracy charge and another identity theft count against Kevin Bollaert, 28, but he faces 20 years in prison at his April 3 sentencing for the 27 guilty verdicts he received.

A mental competency trial was ordered on Feb. 9 for a man accused of stabbing a woman near Belmont Park because her smoking bothered him.

Terrance Alphonse Behan, 71, is charged with felony assault with a deadly weapon in the stabbing near Belmont Park in Mission Beach last July 18.

An initial doctor’s report said Terrance Alphonse Behan, 71, was competent to stand trial, but a second evaluation cast doubt on whether the defendant can assist his attorney at trial. Judge Joseph Brannigan scheduled a competency trial set for March 3.

A former Pacific Beach resident was convicted a Pacific Beach man Feb. 2 of six extortion charges and 21 identity thefts in connection with his operation of a “revenge porn” website, which displayed photos of nude women and required fees ranging from $299 to $350 for their deletion.

Mike (Bossman) Hardin was more than just hamburgers and Hodad’s. He was a friend, father and favorite son of this eclectic beach community, nestled on the western edge of Point Loma.

When news broke of Hardin’s death on Thursday, Feb. 5, residents of Ocean Beach started a makeshift memorial in front of the restaurant on Newport Avenue by leaving flowers, photos and messages. By Friday morning, news had spread, and mourners from all of San Diego were paying their respects.

“Mike’s generosity and kindness had such a huge impact on Ocean Beach. It won’t be the same without him,” said Chanti Kalagian, a native of Ocean Beach, who taped a sign on Hodad’s window that read “RIP Bossman. OB will miss you, Mike!”

“I wanted to show my support,” Kalagian said. “He was a friend to everybody. I can’t believe it.”

Hodad’s, with venues in Ocean Beach, downtown and seasonally at Petco Park, were closed Feb. 6 in honor of Hardin and Feb. 7 in tribute to a co-worker who died in an auto accident.

Hardin, 56, was found in a suburban Fresno hotel Feb. 5 after he went to Northern California to visit his daughter. According to the autopsy results, Hardin died of natural causes.

Hodad’s, which was already a local institution, gained national attention in 2007 when the restaurant was featured on the Food Network show “Diners, Drive-ins and Dives.” That led to Hardin and other “Diners, Drive-Ins and Dives” alumni working together with The Messlords – a nonprofit group of chefs who travel around the world to cook for U.S. troops in spots like Japan, Guam, Egypt, and Dubai.

Hardin’s parents, Byron and Virginia, who purchased both the business and its name, Hodad’s was originally located on the beach at the end of Santa Monica Avenue. In 1991, after several moves, the restaurant opened at its present location on Newport Avenue in the heart of Ocean Beach.

“All of us are really mournful,” said Billy Womack, general manager. “But we’ve put our heads together to figure out how to move forward.”

The eatery features historic photos, walls covered with license plates from all over the world and surfboard-shaped seats. It also features a line out the door and down the block just about every day in the summer.

“Hodad’s has such a positive energy,” said Jill Varney, an Ocean Beach resident who came out to see the memorial in front of the restaurant. “Mike and his staff were always very kind to all their customers. It’s such a tragedy he’s gone. It’s really sad.”

The name Hodad’s is derived from the 1950s beach term for surfer wannabes who were into cars, music and counterculture style, but it had become synonymous with describing Hardin, who was as original and unconventional as his restaurant.

Planning under way for Mission Bay Gateway project

Pacific Beach Planning Group looks to lead on De Anza Cove redevelopment

By DAVE SCHWAB

Now that the De Anza Cove lawsuit has finally been settled and mobile home owners will be moving out, the question now becomes, what’s to become of that real estate?

Pacific Beach planners have distinct ideas about what they’d like to see with the process involving an evolving plan determining how the site will be redeveloped.

“Now that the lawsuit has settled, the Pacific Beach Planning Group (PBPG) is getting in front of the planning for the De Anza Cove,” said planning group chair Brian Curry. “We have met with city planners and council district representatives, and the first item to address is funding.”

Curry said initial planning for redevelopment of the De Anza Cove site would involve District 2 Councilwoman Lorie Zapf asking the city to fund a three-year process:

- Year 1, project start-up/public outreach;
- Year 2, public outreach/start environmental impact report (EIR);
- Year 3, submit EIR to Development Services Department (DSD)/Project Adoption.

“We intend to lead rather than follow the City through planning,” said Curry, adding, “We are strongly encouraging the City to accelerate the process given the De Anza property is a one-of-a-kind public property. Our planning efforts will focus on ‘public’ use. This is ‘our’ property for the enjoyment of the public.”

PBPG colleague Scott Chipman agreed that fast-forwarding planning as much as possible is critical for this prime piece of property.

Chipman noted the De Anza peninsula is designated as a “special study area” within the Mission Bay Master Plan, which is being updated.

“Now that special study can start,” he said, adding what the planning group and community members are saying is, “Don’t just look at the peninsula. Let’s look at the entire corner of Mission Bay Park and plan it as all one recreational, educational and environmental component to the Bay.” The Mission Bay Gateway project seeks to connect and enhance existing facilities while also expanding and protecting the Mission Bay marshlands and bird sanctuaries. Bike paths and parks will be extended, and new amenities like pools, sports fields and a restaurant will be added for the community and visitors to enjoy.

New competency hearing date for driver charged with DUI

A mental competency hearing set for Feb. 9 was postponed to Feb. 20 for a woman who was allegedly on drugs when she drove into a group of cyclists on Fiesta Island, critically injuring one rider.

Theresa Owens, 49, is charged with driving under the influence of a controlled substance and possession of methamphetamine.

A report issued in December found that Owens is mentally competent to stand trial, but the defense requested a second evaluation. Defense attorney Brian Schmidt told Judge Joseph Braunigan that he has not yet received the second report.

Owens allegedly drove the wrong way on a one-way road about 6:30 p.m. on Aug. 12, plowing into a group of 16 to 20 cyclists, hitting 10 of the riders head-on, according to Deputy District Attorney Jessica Coto.

One of the riders, 43-year-old Juan Carlos Vinolo, suffered permanent paralysis from the waist down when struck by the vehicle.

Owens was taken to a hospital, where a baggie of meth was found in a body cavity, the prosecutor said.
Great News keeps on cooking into its 38th year

By DAVE SCHWAB

Great News in Pacific Beach is a tool store for a cook.

That’s how founder Ron Eisenberg described the cookware and cooking school at 1788 Garnet Ave.

“We’re in our 38th year,” said Eisenberg about his strip-mall establishment, which has been in business since 1977.

Eisenberg said Great News started out as more of a “housewaresy, functional giftware store with a greeting card department,” and has morphed over the years to include a full-on cooking school in a retail store selling “high-quality cookware and gadgets, kitchen tools for the home chef.”

What’s really unique about Great News is the approximately 135 classes taught each quarter, nine a week and both days on the week-end, according Eisenberg about Great News’ widespread appeal.

Cooking classes are 2 ½ hours long with an intermission and cost $49 to $65. Great News is also the only cooking school of its type with a legal permit to serve wine with meal preparation.

Cookware and cooking classes at Great News mirror trends happening outside in the field. Right now, what’s really popular is the farm-to-table trend.

“We teach a farm-to-table class where we bring a farmer’s bag in of specialty produce and then show people how to cook from it,” said Eisenberg. “They walk out with recipes for the unique items they get that day in their basket. Instead of having to guess what to do with it — we show them how to do it.”

Eisenberg enthused about his staff, both on the cooking and cookware sides. “We have an educated staff that know what they’re selling: That makes us different,” he said.

Tammy Ford is one of the store employees who helps handle customer queries.

“A lot of people love to come to this store because we’re pretty knowledgeable about the items,” Ford said.

“Sometimes they come in because they know we have everything new,” said Eisenberg. “Other times they come in for a cooking class to learn something.”

“We get phone calls and people walking in who want to know how to use a particular item,” said Ford. “We help them with that.”

“We’re above average at trying to help people select the right item for their cooking style,” said Eisenberg about his business philosophy. “We try and communicate with them.”

Cookware in Great News is compartmentalized. Entire sections are devoted to cooking oils and herbs, coffee and tea, cutlery, condiments, Asian cookware, roasting pans, barbecue-related items and bakeware.

Nearly an entire aisle alone is devoted to cookie cutters. Even specialty items, like comfortable, customized high-end kitchen mats that cushion a cook’s feet, are available. There’s even a blender costing more than $1,000 that Eisenberg refers to as a “Rolls Royce.”

In honor of its 38th year in business, Great News has a promotion going offering discounted items; gift certificates and shopping sprees to customers ending on Feb. 16 with a prize drawing.

“There are 38 prizes in all and you don’t have to be present to win,” said Eisenberg.

“We’re a destination store,” concluded Eisenberg about Great News’ widespread appeal.

Eisenberg said the industry is exciting because, with technology, it’s constantly changing.

This hero may have cast you in his latest novel

By MARTIN JONES WESTLIN

“The Homeless Hero: a Novel,” award-winning author Lee Silber’s 22nd book, is dedicated “to all those who have faced adversity and risen above it.” The nod may sound somewhat generic, but be assured that Silber, an inveterate surfer who set his book in the La Jolla area, knows of what he speaks. He spent a while off the waves in the body and soul of a homeless person as research for the story. His actual street time totaled less than a week, during which he got the flu and burned through the $40 he allowed himself; even so, he marvels at the very special stamina of those so circumstanced.

The 263-page entry, from Deep Impact Publishing, is available on amazon.com. “It’s a tough life,” he understated to Beach & Bay Press, persuading the listener amid the charitable spirit behind his words. “I don’t think anyone appreciates it until you actually live it.”

One of many federal reports says there are in fact more than 600,000 homeless Americans on a given night, a figure that might intrigue Silber amid what he calls a “factual fiction” approach to the book. None of those thousands was less likely a street prospect than former San Diego Charger Thomas “Big Mac” MacDonald, Silber’s central character. Divorce had rendered the one-time Bird Rock resident and ex-defensive lineman virtually penniless, stripped of everything but the classic VW camper he lives in. One thing leads to another, with Big Mac rebuilding his life (such as it was) – but the beach park at which he lives hides a mystery that would test the mettle of a man who stands on the doorstep of right versus wrong.

Everybody, Silber said, will recognize a little of the local flavor, and without much prompting. North Mission Bay Drive’s De Anza Cove, recently reclaimed by the City of San Diego, is the makeshift Mariner Beach Park; the book’s ponytail-clad Jeffrey Weiner, advocate for the homeless, is in reality Jeffrey Sitcov, president of a Cardiff youth charity; editor Julie is based on Julie Main, dogged San Diego Community Newspaper Group publisher. There’s even a Mr. Frosty, counterpart to Pacific Beach’s Mr. Frostie on Garnet Avenue.

Our area’s tonier enclaves color the story’s core irony – that homelessness can visit just about anyone. “Some are homeless by choice,” he said, “and have been for years. I don’t think you could talk them into any other way.” However, he countered in the book’s study guide, “[N]ot everyone who needs help is willing to seek for or accept it. I can relate. I realized I am like that…. I didn’t realize that the person offering to help would get just as much out of it as I would.”

Meanwhile, as it happens, MacDonald’s daughter Abby saves the day. Abby, 12, has had to grow up fast, in the shadow of a generation facing a world of uncertainties. “I really liked her,” Silber said, “and decided she was going to be my main character, in a way. She’s an advocate for the homeless, and I think there’s lots of millennials and teens making a difference in the world, and I wanted to highlight that.”

The connection between Abby and Sitcov’s real-life homeless teen resource, he added, is a natural.
The new Oceana Coastal Kitchen, at the Catamaran Resort Hotel and Spa on Mission Bay, recently opened its doors, offering California cuisine and modern, ocean-inspired design to the Pacific Beach community.

Steven Riemer has been named the restaurant’s executive chef. The 8,200-square-foot indoor and outdoor restaurant is designed to bring the outdoors in with ocean-inspired colors, textures and materials. Ranging from casual to upscale, the airy waterfront restaurant features several distinct dining areas, including a quartz-topped cold bar imbedded with mother of pearl and sea glass.

The focal point in the main dining room is an 800-gallon aquarium, which will feature fluorescent tropical jellyfish. A large sliding window gives way to unobstructed views and breezes from Mission Bay. The main dining room includes a combination of upholstered banquettes and loose tables featuring custom Hawaiian made Koa tabletops, as well as chairs and stools that were handcrafted in Bali.

The restaurant also features a 12-seat private dining room and a 16-seat semi-private dining area with a chandelier made from large blown glass discs suspended from the metal framework. A palette of calming blue and green hues, custom lighting and wall sconces designed by local artist James Stone complete the look. The space features sleek booths and tables with waterfront views, along with an adjacent lounge equipped with tiki torches and lava rock fire pits.

Next to the bayside walk, the patio has a dog-friendly atmosphere complete with water bowls and even a food menu to feed patrons’ four-legged friends.

Dempsey Construction, a San Diego-based company, provided general contracting services to the project.

Chef Riemer has more than 25 years of culinary experience at two of Southern California’s notable AAA Five Diamond resort hotels (The Lodge at Torrey Pines and The Ritz-Carlton, Laguna Niguel). Riemer’s dishes highlight a commitment to sustainable ingredients. Upon entering, guests will see a 25-foot-long cold bar serving oysters, sushi, seafood platters and specialty items, such as yellowtail crudo, sesame sea bass ceviche and tuna carpaccio.

The restaurant’s menu features a selection of dishes from the land and sea and also offers vegetarian, vegan and gluten-free options. Oceana has an extensive selection of California wines (more than 50 labels) as well as many of San Diego’s most notable craft beers on tap, including a signature brew, Oceana Pale Ale, custom made in collaboration with Karl Strauss.

Carini opening

Carini Heating and Air Conditioning held a ribbon-cutting ceremony and open house on Feb. 5 to celebrate the company’s move into an expanded office and warehouse facility at 3388 Channel Way, in the Point Loma area. Jerry Sanders, former San Diego Mayor and current president of the San Diego Regional Chamber of Commerce and City Councilwoman Lorie Zapf led the festivities with the ribbon-cutting ceremony. Carini Heating and Air Conditioning founder and CEO Gabriel Carini also took part in the ceremony.

Eco Wash in PB

As San Diego residents face restrictions and penalties on when and how they can wash their vehicles during California’s drought, Pacific Beach Toyota dealership Mossy Toyota has opened an advanced new Eco Wash with WaterSavers and LEED certifications. The hybrid-system, chain-conveyor car wash accommodates up to 85 vehicles in an hour, and each wash uses just 15 gallons of water, 95 percent of which is then recycled. Eco Wash comes in well below a 40-gallon-per-wash requirement for WaterSavers membership.

- The Patio On Lamont Street: 4445 Lamont St., (858) 412-4648.

  “We have a new bourbon whiskey drink. “Can I Get A Hug,” we’re offering now through Feb. 15, which qualifies guests for a raffle ticket to enter into a prize drawing,” said Samantha Robinson, director of marketing with the Patio Restaurant Group.

- The Sweet Shoppe will be setting up a candy station and drinks will be available throughout.

- Chef Matt Richman will be offering Multi-course V-Day inspired dishes, a themed photo booth, and some special V-Day brews on tap during this happy hour and a themed photo booth.

- Pacific Beach Urgent Care, 4490 Fanning St. (at Garnet Avenue), (858) 274-9116. The PB health care facility reminds everyone that February is Heart Awareness Month. The facility on the corner of Fannell and Garnet offers free blood pressure checks with no appointment, and there are only a few dozen left.

- Table 926, 926 Turquoise St., (858) 539-0926.

  “Guests are invited to enjoy our $50 prix fixe menu or indulge on their own pace and choose items a la carte,” said Holly Hitchcock, a marketing consultant representing Table 926. “Valentine’s Day dinner guests can design their ideal dinner with a set price and choose one item from each dining section, including starters, entrees and desserts, or they can carve their own path and enjoy the Valentine’s Day menu a la carte.

  “Chef Matt Richman will be serving seasonal farm-to-table dishes, and our staff will have the perfect wine or beer on hand to complete the meal.”

- San Diego County Assessor/Recorder/County Clerk’s San Diego office is getting into the Valentine’s act, remaining open on Feb. 14. County assessor Erin Dronenburg, however, reminded couples wishing to tie the knot or renew their wedding vows downtown at Waterfront Park alongside the County Administration Center that appointments are required and are filling quickly.

  “We are excited to offer Saturday services for Valentine’s Day and to offer all interested couples to have their Valentine’s Day wedding with my office,” said Dronenburg. “Marriage services are by appointment, and there are only a few dozen left.”

- Surf Boutique, 4445 Lamont St., (858) 412-4648

- Dronenburg’s office at 1600 Pacific Highway, Suite 273, will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Feb. 14 for marriage licenses and ceremonies only. Reservations may be made by calling (619) 237-0502.

The cost of a non-confidential marriage license is $70. There is an additional $88 charge to have a county staffer perform the wedding ceremony.

Those taking advantage of the Valentine’s Day holiday will be observing a Western cultural tradition dating back to early Christian times.

St. Valentine’s Day began as a liturgical celebration for one or more early Christian saints named Valentine. According to Wikipedia, several martyrdom stories were invented for the various Valentines that belonged to Feb. 14.

The day was first associated with romantic love in the circle of Geoffrey Chaucer in the High Middle Ages, when the tradition of courtly love flourished.

In 18th-century England, Valentine’s Day evolved into an occasion in which lovers expressed their love for each other by presenting flowers, offering confectionery, and sending greeting cards known as “valentines.” Valentine’s Day symbols still used today include the heart-shaped outline, doves, and the figure of the winged Cupid.

Since the 19th century, handwritten valentines have given way to mass-produced greeting cards.

Café-Bar Europa, 873 Turquoise St., will have a Valentine’s dinner for two with multi-course tapas, Champagne and dessert from 7 to 10 p.m. on Feb. 13 and 14. There will also be salsa dancing from 9 p.m.-1 a.m. on Feb. 14.

On Feb. 15 the restaurant will hold a Singles Mixer Ken and Barbie Party. All Kens and Barbies will get in for no cover. All others must pay $10 at the door. There will be a Ken and Barbie fashion show and costume contest at 7 p.m. Kiss your Barbie wheel of fortune at 8 p.m. And a Ken amateur sticker contest at 10 p.m.

February is NATIONAL CHILDREN’S DENTAL HEALTH MONTH:

Would you know what to do if your child broke a tooth or had a tooth knocked out while playing outdoors? Knowing what to do can lessen the pain and save a tooth that might otherwise be lost. If your child has a knocked-out tooth:

1. Try to find the tooth!
2. Hold the tooth by the crown and rinse the tooth in water if the tooth is dirty. Don’t scrub it or remove any attached tissue fragments.
3. If it’s possible, gently insert the tooth and hold the tooth in its socket while you head to the dentist.
4. If that’s not possible, put the tooth in a cup of milk and bring to the dentist.

Reggae aficionados best bet for Valentine’s Day is easily the Devastators performance at the 710 Beach Club on Feb. 14. The Devastators have become a powerhouse in the Southern California reggae scene, with their popularity now extending well beyond the state line. Multiple San Diego Music Awards nominees, the band took home trophies in 2010 and 2012, confirming their popularity amongst local scenesters. Reggae is often called “the sound of Pacific Beach” and this match of band and venue is a great way to spend a Saturday, just a few feet from the water.

Classic rock fans won’t want to miss the Tom Petty tribute band, Full Moon Fever, appearing at Tio Leo’s on Feb. 20. This not a costumed group, just a really good rock band using their musical skills on a catalog of crowd pleasers now running three decades long. Full Moon Fever does them justice. Indeed, there is no shortage of songs to fill the dance floor, with Petty’s tunes, such as “Running Down A Dream” and “Breakdown,” featuring enough variety and hooks to keep the dance floor jumping.

Full Moon Fever:

Friday, Feb. 20, Tio Leo’s, 5302 Napa Street. 9 p.m. 21 and up. Cover TBD. ticketweb.com.

The Kona Kai’s acoustic music series continues to offer up musical treasures each week. On Feb. 22, the free event will feature a strong line-up of Rhythm Turnear, Ves Frank, Veronica Quin, Ezcikal Jay and Israel Maldonado. All have their strengths, but Maldonado’s closing set promises to be the day’s highlight. Recently featured in the Old Globe Theatre’s Tribute to Jeff Buckley production, Maldonado is a wonderfully lyrical guitar player. Originally from Tijuana, his music has a strong Latin feel. Performances at this show are only in the 20-minute range meaning artists play their best tunes.

PHOTOGRAPHY TIPS FROM PROFESSIONALS

TIPS FOR SUNSET PHOTOS

For DSLR cameras
Focus and exposure mode: Manual
Shutter speed: 1/30sec or longer
Aperture: f/16
ISO: 100 or lower
Lens: 18-24mm
Drive mode: Single-shot
White balance: Daylight

TOP 10 TIPS – Setting the exposure for the sky will capture the best colors, but the foreground will end up dark. Use a natural density grad filter to balance the exposure. If you don’t have a ND filter, shoot twice – once for the sky and another for the land. Combine them in Photoshop.

Testimony began Jan. 16. San Diego Superior Court Judge David Gill initially said he had leaned toward letting Bollaert remain free on $50,000 bond pending his arraignment. But Attorney General Tawnya Austin asked that he be remanded to jail because of “potential harm to the community,” (as) he is a master to using the Internet.

“His specialty is harm on the Internet,” said Austin. “This is an individual who has no moral compass.”

Twenty-six women and two men testified they learned their nude photos somehow got on the website and were told they had to pay $299 to $1,500 to get them taken down. Most of the victims said they did not know how to get their pictures back. Austin told Gill that Bollaert was convicted in federal court of giving a wrong address on applications to buy 20 firearms, seized by authorities. Bollaert is currently on federal probation and served 15 days in federal prison in 2014, his attorney, Emily Rose-Weber, confirmed to Gill.
